Wedding belles are dressed to impress

Lisa Haynes looks at the latest styles for gowns, how to flatter your shape and where to find your perfect dress on the High Street

Wedding Dress, £495 by Elizabeth Emanuel Art of Elegance collection at Bhs

Seen by more than 750 million people around the world in 1981, Princess Diana's royal wedding gown is one of the most famous dresses to ever walk down an aisle.

Elizabeth Emanuel, who designed the dress with her then husband David, may be associated with exclusive couture gowns, but she has recently launched a bridal range for the high street.

Emanuel's Art of Elegance collection for Bhs is proof that you don't have to go bankrupt to buy your dream dress – each of the four signature-style gowns is £495.

"My couture gowns normally sell for many thousands of pounds which makes them out of reach of the general public," she says.

"It's been a dream of mine to be able to create a range of wedding gowns that reflect my couture collection in both quality and design but at a more accessible price."

Designer gowns – without the hefty price tags – are also at your fingertips at Debenhams, which has an impressive range of big name bridalwear. Creations from catwalk favourites Julien Macdonald, Ben de Lisi and Pearce Fionda are all available, starting from just £120 for a skirt, and £200 for a gown in store or online.

So before you blow your entire wedding day budget on your dress, check out your favourite stores for designer wow factor on your big day. Choosing a fashionable silhouette and picking the right dress for your shape will leave you looking a million dollars - even if you haven't spent it!

THIS YEAR'S STYLES

Whether you dream of a traditional meringue-style gown with all the trimmings or crave something with clean and simple lines, there's a bridal gown to suit all tastes. But if you want to walk down the aisle inspired by catwalk trends, Clare Totman, buyer for Evans Bridal, has this advice on capturing of-the-

Fears as nuisance neighbour has curfew lifted

by THAIS PORTILHO-SHRIMPTON
tpshrimpton@london.newsdesk.co.uk

A nuisance neighbour who stares, spits and hisses is free to carry out a night-time terror campaign after a judge lifted a curfew order, local residents claimed.

Epsom hospital administrator Charles Moore, 34, was given a five-year antisocial behaviour order in March after a persistent harassment campaign against neighbours involving swearing, criminal damage on cars, shouting and, on one occasion, complaining vacuuming was too loud.

As part of the Asbo, Moore of Breech Lane, Walton on the Hill, was put under a strict curfew which banned him from leaving his house between 11pm and 6am. He was also ordered to stop swearing, spitting and hissing at neighbours and he was banned from touching any cars in the road or talking to anyone over his garden fence.

But on Thursday, at an appeal hearing at Guildford Crown Court, Judge Christopher Critchlow decided the terms of the Asbo were too excessive and removed the curfew.

Scared neighbours said last night he was now free to continue tormenting them.

According to residents, knowing that Moore is able to roam the streets at night is terrifying.

A neighbour, who was too afraid to be named, said: "The curfew is the main thing that we want to keep in the Asbo, because we believe he does all the damage during the night."

Another neighbour said: "When I drive home from work I keep looking out for him."

'A living hell': Charles Moore (inset) has made residents' lives in Walton on the Hill miserable

Deadlinepix EP22907

"Sometimes he stands outside his front door and stares at his neighbours," said another. "He's made our lives a living hell."

Another Breech Lane resident said: "Sometimes when he gets angry he steps outside his house and slams his bin's lid several times as hard as he can. We think that one day he is just going to flip and do something worse."

A group of neighbours praised the work of the police in the case, but criticised the courts.

One said: "The police are doing everything within their power. It's just the judge who needs a kick up the bottom."

The Asbo in March was granted after Moore was sentenced to pay £357 compensation for criminally damaging one of his neighbours' cars during the night.

A CCTV camera, set up after previous criminal damage on vehicles in the street had been caused, captured him scratching and denting the vehicle.

In 2003, Moore was found guilty of causing £12,000-worth of damage to other neighbours' cars when he lived at The Meads, Cheam.

He also had imposed on him a four-month curfew.

Neighbourhood specialist officer for Walton on the Hill, PC Kelly Thorne, said at the time: "Charles Moore has persistently behaved in an antisocial way towards his neighbours for a number of years.

"The offences he committed, which mainly consisted of causing criminal damage to his neighbours' vehicles, had such detrimental effect on community life in the area that Surrey police worked with our partners to bring about this Asbo."

Moore faces further charges of criminal damage and is due to appear at Redhill Magistrates' Court on September 22.

Super-sized Pavlovas hit the stage at the Playhouse

by HELEN CRANE
hcrane@london.newsquest.co.uk

Stage hands at Epsom Playhouse are gearing themselves up to keep a close watch on the stage to make sure it copes when it comes under strain next month.

The pounding of 32 feet belonging to 16 substantial ballet dancers – average weight 16 stone – is enough to rock the foundations of some buildings.

But the Epsom Playhouse was built to last and the reinforced concrete under the stage should stand the strain.

The last time the Big Ballet visited Epsom the show was a triumph and the company is making a return visit by public demand for one night only on Tuesday October 7.

The group comes from Russia's Ural Mountains, Tchaikovsky's home town and sets out to challenge the usual preconceptions of what a ballet dancer should look like.

Epsom Playhouse says that it is a hilarious comedy show full of astonishing choreography but probably not an ideal outing for ballet purists.

Big: But graceful

Dallaglio's rugby bash

A former England rugby union captain is raising funds for an Epsom charity.

Lawrence Dallaglio is urging anyone who is free next Saturday to head to Twickenham Stadium to help raise £1m to support wounded servicemen and women at Headley Court rehabilitation centre near Epsom.

He is to come out of retirement to take part in the Help for Heroes Challenge Match at the home of English rugby on September 20 and he said a number of rugby stars will be joining him.

"The response within rugby has been magnificent," said Mr Dallaglio.

"We have a host of star names. Players wrote and phoned up and made themselves available. I would urge anyone with the time and opportunity to come and get behind a worthwhile cause."

A surge of ticket sales has meant that Twickenham Stadium will open up another tier to accommodate the expected crowds coming to support the seriously injured men and women undergoing comprehensive treatment at the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre.

Mr Dallaglio said 30,000 tickets had been sold for the match, which kicks off at 2.30pm, with 6,000 going in the last week but he was still hoping to get to 50,000, 60,000 or possibly even the capacity of 82,000 through the turnstiles.

The match will feature two teams: a Help for Heroes XV – captained by Mr Dallaglio with Phil De Glanville, another former England captain, acting as manager - and an International Select XV.

Wildlife on One Show

One of the UK's busiest wildlife hospitals will feature on BBC's primetime The One Show next week.

A BBC crew spent 10 days filming at the Leatherhead-based Wildlife Aid to show what goes on behind the scenes at the rescue and rehabilitation centre in Randalls Road.

Presenter Mike Dilger will introduce the staff and volunteers to viewers who will see the very first flight of some young tawny owls, hand-reared from babies at the centre.

Winnie the Weasel will be introduced to her new home and 12 young badgers will try their first earthworms on camera.

The activities of the centre are well known to watchers of the Discovery Channel's Animal Planet series, which has filmed Wildlife Aid's founder Simon Cowell rescuing animals as far afield as South Africa and Florida where he wrestles with an alligator, swims with manatees and comes face to face with a black bear.

The Discovery Channel series starts on Monday September 15, the same day that the One Show starts its series of broadcasts from Leatherhead.

Second robbery from Wine Rack

by THAIS PORTILLO-SHRIMPTON

tpshrimpton@london.newsquest.co.uk

An off-licence in Tadworth was robbed on Thursday by three masked men, only two days after another Wine Rack store in Kingswood was stormed by a gunman in an attempted robbery.

This week police released CCTV images of the masked gunman who threatened staff but ran away empty-handed after the alarm went off.

In the latest robbery three men wearing dust masks entered the Wine Rack store in Station Approach Road at about 9.50pm and forced a member of staff to lock the front door and open the safe.

The men left through the front door after stealing cash from the safe and till. There were no customers in the store at the time, no one was injured and police are not linking this to the other Wine Rack robbery attempt.

The member of staff said he did not see any weapons, although a witness said he saw one of the men carrying an object similar to a hammer as ran away from the scene.

CCTV images of the failed Wine Rack robber

Police have described one suspect as a white man in his late teens or early 20s, of slim build and average height. He was wearing a black hooded top. There is no description available for the other two men, but it is believed they wore tracksuits.

Detective Inspector Juliet Parker said: "We do not believe this incident connects to the attempted robbery in Kingswood earlier in the week. I am committing a large number of resources to investigate the incidents.

"The experience must have been terrifying for the member of staff who was in the store at the time, and information from the community is vital, so please do come forward if you saw anything."

Teens fall victim to gang of robbers on bikes

Three teenagers were beaten and robbed by a cycle riding gang of robbers in Epsom.

The teenagers walked past a gang of youths with bikes in Ruxley Lane, close to Ruxley Court, at around 8.50pm on Tuesday, when a fourth man appeared on a bicycle and grabbed one of the victims, demanding his phone and money.

The victim said he had neither and the man demanded the same from the other two teenagers.

One of the victims then tried to run away, but the man on the bicycle gave chase and stopped him. There was a scuffle involving both groups resulting in all of the victims receiving minor injuries. One of them was taken to hospital with injured ribs.

All four robbers left the scene when passers-by intervened. They took a mobile phone, cigarettes and a small amount of cash from the victims.

The man riding the bicycle was described as a white man with a tanned complexion aged 18-20, around 6ft and of broad build. He had short dark hair, patchy stubble and acne scars or blemishes on the cheeks. He was wearing a blue hooded top, tracksuit bottoms and was riding a red postal-style bike, with a basket on the front.

The other three youths, who had BMX or mountain bikes, were male, aged 15-16, around 5ft 8in, of slim or medium build with short hair. The three were wearing tracksuit bottoms and one or two of them was wearing white tops.

Investigating Officer Detective Constable Nicky Hunt said: "Surrey Police do not tolerate any form of violence and I am appealing to members of the public to come forward if they have any information which could help my investigation.

Anyone with information should contact DC Hunt at Epsom CID on 0845 125 2222.

Book of Biggs behind bars

Insights: Ronnie Biggs' life

by HELEN CRANE
hcrane@london.newsquest.co.uk

Great train robber Ronnie Biggs has been given a 160-page boost to his campaign to be paroled.

Authors and close friends of Ronnie Biggs, Mike Gray and Tel Currie, have written a book called 'Ronnie Biggs: The Inside Story'.

They reveal how the robber involved in the £2.5m robbery in 1963 and who escaped from Wandsworth Prison to seek refuge in Brazil has been treated since returning to England in 2001.

Mike Gray from Epsom is the organiser of "The Free Ronnie Biggs Campaign".

He first contacted Ronnie Biggs in Rio, in 1989, and is now leading the drive to have the 79-year-old who is seriously ill, paroled on the grounds of ill health.

But the wheelchair-using robber is still well enough to attract national headlines when he recently assaulted child murderer Ian Huntley with a cardboard box.

Both Mr Gray and Mr Currie have been regular prison visitors to Biggs since 2001 when Biggs returned to the UK.

Mr Gray said: "This book needed to be written and both myself and Tel are the best people to write it, we have been there with Ronnie and witnessed things you wouldn't believe."

The book documents things such as Biggs being double handcuffed to his hospital bed and when he was considered well enough to leave he was taken out in chains.

There are lists of complaints about the way Biggs is being treated and the lack of medical attention in prison.

The book includes a foreword by Biggs' son, Michael. He wrote "This book is an inside view of my father's life in HMP Belmarsh and HMP Norwich from 2001 to the present date.

"Mike Gray and Tel Currie are two of the very few people who have the inside knowledge of my father's life inside Her Majesty's prisons. It's a real eye-opener to the harsh regime my father has had to endure for the past seven-plus years."

The train driver, Jack Mills, who was coshed during the train robbery never recovered from his injuries and died in 1970.

'Dream come true'

Lucky 11- year-old Junior Gunner Lewis Beasley from Beaconsfield Road, Epsom, was chosen at random to be the Gunners' mascot for their Premier League fixture against Newcastle.

Lewis, who has been an Arsenal supporter for many years, led out the team at the Emirates Stadium and met his favourite players.

Lewis was delighted to have been selected. "I can't believe I was chosen. There are thousands of kids who are Junior Gunners and it's a dream come true to be the club's mascot. I had such a great time and it was awesome to meet all my favourite players."

He walked the team out on to the pitch, met his heroes and got their autographs and later was presented with a new Arsenal kit.

The Junior Gunners is a supporters' club for boys and girls aged up to 16.

Wards to lose beds

by HELEN CRANE
hcrane@london.newsquest.co.uk

All in-patient mental health services in the Epsom area will close and patients will have to travel to Redhill, Guildford or Chertsey for hospital care if a new scheme goes ahead.

As well as the closure of the three psychiatric wards at the Langley wing at Epsom General Hospital, the specialist unit for the elderly mentally frail at West Park Hospital will also shut.

The closure of all in-patient care in the north of the county is the latest proposal from the Surrey and Borders Partnership NHS Foundation Trust which it claims will eventually lead to improved mental health services.

But its plans are likely to generate fury among people who rely on its services and Epsom's MP Chris Grayling is to protest.

The plans include the closure of the 26-bed Elgar ward, 14-bed Delius ward and 11-bed intensive care Fenby ward in the Langley wing at Epsom General Hospital which will leave part of the hospital empty at a time when its future is in doubt.

There will be extra provision at other centres, but overall the trust will lose 24 acute beds.

"It is the third or fourth time since I became MP that patient services in the area have been scaled back," said Mr Grayling.

"We will end up with some of the most vulnerable people in the area really struggling because services they need are no longer available on the doorstep."

Geoff Martin, head of campaigns for Health Emergency, said: "It appears that there is a scorched earth policy on mental health services in Surrey and south London.

"At a time when budgets are under attack they are going for the soft option, they are stripping away access to mental health care."

The plans include buying a new site in Redhill to build a new in-patient centre and also using St Peter's Hospital, Chertsey, and the Farnham Road Hospital in Guildford for acute care. Older people and other patients will be treated at the same units.

Trust medical director Dr Malcolm Hawthorne said: "Our hospitals will be respectful places offering privacy and dignity in pleasant surroundings with direct access to outside spaces."

A consultation meeting will be held on Wednesday, October 8, from 7pm to 8.30pm at Bourne Hall, Spring Street, Ewell.

There is an online consultation form at sabp.nhs.uk/our-futureyoursay or by requesting a copy of the consultation document, which includes a short questionnaire.

Council's vision of the future

Epsom could become a thriving shopping centre, bringing in a mix of people attracted by its cafe culture and variety of cultural, shopping and entertainment facilities.

Epsom and Ewell Borough Council is encouraging "blue sky thinking" about what Epsom could look like in 20-years time if there was a reduction in traffic through the town centre.

The council predict that without a constant stream of cars, pedestrians would be able to wander the town safely, choosing from a range of up-market shops and chain stores.

The town centre could also feature a BMX or skate board park to attract youngsters, while older people would feel relaxed and safe visiting the shops or the range of bars and restaurants.

by HELEN CRANE
hcrane@london.newsquest.co.uk

There would be more residential developments in the town centre to offer a range of homes, including affordable apartments and buildings could be revamped to make an attractive street scene reflecting Epsom's history as a market town.

The reality in 2008 is that the busy A24 dominates the town, and although the Mall and the market place are attracting shoppers, the number of people visiting other parts of the town is dropping and Epsom is competing with larger towns including Sutton, Kingston, Croydon and Guildford.

Epsom's policy planning sub-committee is working on a public consultation exercise to find out what people would like to see in the town centre and is asking for ideas to improve the environment, public transport links or other aspects of the town.

The sub-committee has already drawn up a detailed analysis of the town – a list of its strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats.

Among the threats are the A24 dominating the town, increasing traffic congestion, the credit crunch and economic down turn and the possibility that Epsom could turn into a dormitory town.

Its strengths include a relatively affluent catchment area, a good range of public facilities and a number of successful businesses.

Committee chairman Councillor Michael Arthur said: "It raises many issues. This is an important look at the town centre and what we can do to make changes for the better."

NEWSbrief

PUBLIC MEETING: Epsom and Ewell Borough Council is to hold a special meeting to decide whether to approve two concerts planned for Epsom Downs next June.

The Epsom and Walton Downs Conservators decided to approve the application after taking legal advice and listening to residents' views, but the concerts can only go ahead if the Council gives consent.

The meeting will be held at Epsom Town Hall at 7.30pm on Friday, September 12.

HOSPITAL CONCERNS: Hospital bosses are still in negotiation with multimillionaire Adrian White over his planned take over of the Epsom General Hospital site.

Epsom and St Helier University Hospital NHS Trust have taken further legal advice and have had discussions with the Department of Health over the proposal.

A document specifying the details of the site, to allow other people to put in bids to run health services from Epsom, was to have been drawn up this summer but has been delayed.

Meeting to discuss proposed Tesco plans

Ashtead Peace Memorial Hall is expected to be packed out for a special meeting to discuss the proposed new Tesco supermarket in Ashtead.

If it gets planning permission, the store will be four times the size of the existing Tesco Express in Craddocks Parade.

Ashtead Residents Association, which is organising the meeting, describes the development as "the single most important change to the village for many years."

Tesco's planning application to build a new supermarket on the old Esso site and to extend the Ashtead Peace Memorial Car Park is causing concern and the Residents Association is organising a questionnaire to assess public opinion about the proposal.

"We would like to understand fully the views of local residents and reflect them in our submission on the proposal to Mole Valley District Council," said chairman Paul Le Versha in an on-line statement.

Volunteers from the association have hand delivered letters to almost every house in Ashtead from seven district and county councillors requesting people to express their views on the new store.

The meeting will be held on the evening of September 16 at 7pm at Ashtead Peace Memorial Hall.

The organisers expect a crowded meeting and ask residents to send just one representative for every household.

Harassing cheat fined for damage

by JAMIE HENDERSON
jhenderson@london.newsquest.co.uk

An Epsom man has been fined for harassing his ex-girlfriend and causing hundreds of pounds' worth of damage to her car.

Scott Cunningham, of Fir Tree Road, appeared at South Western Magistrates' Court on Friday to hear charges of harassment, criminal damage and driving without insurance.

The court heard how Cunningham had broken up with his girlfriend of eight years, Emma Middleton, from Wandsworth, in September last year, after he had an affair with one of her friends.

Over the next few months, he tried unsuccessfully to get back together with her, and repeatedly called her and sent texts.

This culminated in the 25-year-old attempting suicide on two occasions; once by swallowing a large quantity of pills and another by fixing a hose to his car's exhaust, which he then fed through the car window.

In April this year, Miss Middleton found that several swear words had been scratched on to the front door of her house in Windlesham Grove, off Tibbet's Corner, and the initials "SAC" had been carved on to her car door.

Cunningham at first denied the vandalism, but later admitted doing it and offered to pay for the damage to be repaired.

He was charged with driving without insurance because he used another friend's car to drive to Miss Middleton's flat.

Cunningham was given 160 hours unpaid work and ordered to pay £600 compensation for the damage to Ms Middleton's car. He was also fined £200 for driving without insurance, plus a £15 victim surcharge, and given six points on his driving licence.

Keen Green and Ethical Trade market: No plastic bags

Shop with an old bag

Sutton's first ethical market will be plastic bag-free, writes Elizabeth Steele.

Stallholders at the Keen Green and Ethical Trade market will instead sell canvas or biodegradable bags and organisers want to encourage shoppers to bring their own bags or reuse an old plastic bag.

It is estimated that 4,000 plastic bags would be given away at a market of equivalent scale and Sutton Council hopes bringing the plastic bag-free market to the town will raise awareness about the impact of disposable plastic bags on the environment.

Councillor Lyn Gleeson, executive member for economic development, said: "Going plastic bag-free is a great statement about how we can all do our bit to build a sustainable community.

"This is the first green and ethical market to come to Sutton and I urge people to come along and see the exciting range of goods on sale."

The market in the High Street on September 26 to 28 will be open from 9am to 5.30pm, offering a wide range of ethically traded arts and crafts, clothing and accessories, along with a variety of food stalls including Portuguese cuisine and a hog roast.

The Sussex Morris Men will be performing on the high street on Saturday.

There will be a visiting market or special event on the last weekend of every month as part of Sutton Council's town centre regeneration programme.

No dragon investment for happy birthday ringtones

An entrepreneurial couple faced the wrath of the Dragons in BBC2's hit business show Dragon's Den this week.

The married couple from Sutton appeared on the show, famed for launching Levi Roots' Reggae Sauce, on Tuesday night.

The couple, who run the website minor2major, tried to get £100,000 from judges with their celebratory mobile phone messages.

The personalised messages, which can be sent between mobile phones can wish somebody a musical happy birthday, or happy new year.

Singer and business partner Jeanette Contant-Galitello who records vocals and the instrumentals for the songs in her recording studio, said that the experience of going on the Den was fantastic. "It was very surreal. It is very nerve-racking walking up the stairs to the den. You literally get your time to pitch and that is it, we didn't get to meet the judges apart from in the den."

by JAMES PEPPER
jpepper@london.newsquest.co.uk

The product the couple tried to gain investment in is called GiveSong. As Jeanette explained, it is handy if you have forgotten a relatives birthday.

She said: "You can download givesong for free by texting 'music' to 60330. Once you download it, you can have it in your applications menu on your phone and it will connect you to wap. You can then type in any name you want and we will have a song for you, which you can then send to a loved one. Young people really seem to like the R&B birthday one."

But unfortunately the couple did not secure the funding from the five strong scrutiny board featuring leisure guru Duncan Bannatyne and former Millwall FC chairman Theo Paphitis.

Fooballer: Robert Hughes

Birthday for coma victim

by JULIA KENNARD
jmennard@london.newsquest.co.uk

A young footballer brutally attacked on holiday has celebrated his 28th birthday recovering from lifesaving surgery in a Greek hospital.

Robert Hughes was left in a coma for two weeks after being jumped on by British thugs outside the Candy Club in Malia, Crete on June 17.

His brother David, 36, said the family feared the former Sutton United player wouldn't wake up and would be left in a permanent vegetative state.

But Robert's mother Maggie said on Saturday her son managed to hold small conversations with close family members and fellow patients as they held a quiet tea party at his bedside.

Mrs Hughes said the celebration came as a welcome reprieve for the family, who are feeling increasingly despondent with the Greek police's handling of the investigation and fear the case is being overlooked.

Candy Club: Where Robert was attacked

Last week their distress was amplified when it was revealed that the youths suspected of the attack had allegedly gloated about the assault on social networking site Facebook.

Mrs Hughes said: "It was really nice, in fact it was normal for a change, not like the heartache and upset that it has been for the last 12 weeks.

"We had something good to celebrate, which is fantastic for a change. Everybody has been telling me that I look so unwell and pale, so this was a nice way to cheer us all up a bit."

She added: "Most of the time he spent sleeping but we just chatted among ourselves and someone bought a Greek chocolate cake – it wasn't quite the same as home but we tried.

"We invited other British patients in the hospital to join us too – one was a burns victim and another was a victim of attack – so there was quite a feeling of camaraderie."

Mrs Hughes said she believed the category of the case was now being decided by the courts, but said she was concerned that the British police had offered her "no support".

MP Tom Brake said he was continuing to chase the Greek ambassador for an urgent meeting to discuss the case.

A Metropolitan Police spokesman said: "Legally we are limited in what we can do. Unless the Greek authorities request assistance we cannot intervene in the investigation."

The family have been advised that the five suspects could be extradited to Greece for trial.

Charity thieves helping themselves to clothes

Thieves have stooped to new lows in Sutton, targeting charity shops.

Age Concern in the high street says it has had various items taken from its store in recent weeks.

Thieves have been taking the clothes off the racks, taking them into the changing rooms and swapping clothes over with old ones.

Manager of the Age Concern shop Michelle Pettitt says she is shocked that people could stoop so low. She said: "I can't believe people would steal from a charity shop. We are here to raise money for the elderly. People are literally taking money away from the most vulnerable in society. We have also had reports of people having their purses stolen from pick-pockets within the shop."

In another incident, shop volunteers are reported to have seen a group of eastern European women trying to sell fake jewellery in the shop. "They have been so blatant about it. They have just walked up to customers in the shop and asked them if they want gold."

Ms Pettitt said that times were hard. She said: "It's bad enough with these type of things going on, but people are spending less as well. We have noticed a real dip in sales in the last month."

Celebrating 100 years of worshipping in Wallington

by JULIA KENNARD
jkennard@london.newsquest.co.uk

Parishioners are celebrating the 100th birthday of their church.

Before the turn of the century Wallington Methodist Church stood in Clyde Road, was built out of corrugated iron and aptly nick-named the Iron Church.

In 1908 it was re-homed to Beddington Gardens and a new stone church was built with the old corrugated iron building used as a hall.

Parishioner Alan Jameson, a former teacher and magistrate, said the congregation topped 50 people in 1908 and the flock increased to a peak of 400 people in the 1960s and 70s.

Mr Jameson, 71, who joined 48 years ago after he moved to the area, said the congregation had now dropped to 150 but it was enjoying a renaissance with a growing multicultural make-up.

"When we first joined there was just one black face there, now African people make up a third of the population.

"We also have lots of folk from Sri Lanka and people of Asian origin.

Steward Kweku Awotwi, Rev Geoff Boxer and Alan Jameson (inset) at Wallington Methodist Church Deadlinepix SU22767

"It's something we're very proud of and want to celebrate along with the rest of our bright history."

Mr Jameson, of Carshalton, who is also a lay preacher, said the church's birthday would be celebrated at a host of activities from this weekend through to November 12.

Young members will kick off celebrations this Saturday, September 13, when they try to make 100 people smile by dishing out doughnuts and coffee on Wallington shopping strip and then host an evening of rock music back at the church hall in the evening.

Share Jesus International director Andy Frost will give a morning of worship the next day.

The following weekend the congregation's multicultural members will be celebrated with a day of music, food and dancing from around the world on Saturday evening and a service led by Antiguaborn Reverend Ermal Kirby, chairman of the London District of the Methodist Church on Sunday 21. Hitting Chinese top 10

A 15-year-old pupil who attends a weekly school has achieved one of the top 10 marks in the country in her Chinese GCSE exam.

Amy Liu, who took the exam a year before the rest of her GCSEs, received a letter from examining body Edexel last week, congratulating her on being among the elite in the whole of England.

The student, who attends Ming Tak Chinese School in Belmont, studied at the school, which only opens on Saturday mornings between 10.30am and 12.50pm.

Amy Liu said she was ecstatic with the result. "I'm so happy. I decided to take the exam a year early as I will have so much to do next year, although I may start studying for A-level if I have time," she said.

Amy said that the Saturday school was very intensive but she managed to cope. She said: "We didn't actually get that much homework to do during the week, we had essays to do but we did the majority of the learning on Saturdays.

"There is a lot of logic in learning Chinese. Although there is no alphabet, there are radicals and patterns that you have to look out for, its all about memorising them so you can piece together words.

"I go to China every summer so that helps with learning the language, but writing it is a different story."

GCSE winner: Amy Liu has one of the best marks in the country Deadlinepix BT22668

Teacher Mrs Mong Mai is delighted with Amy's results. She said: "Amy was a star pupil. All of our pupils did extremely well. Nine of our GCSE pupils got A stars."

Ming Tak Chinese School, based at Avenue Primary School in Belmont, teaches Mandarin and Cantonese from nursery school through to adulthood. It serves about 300 pupils in 23 classes.

The waiting game: Ian and Amy Turner

Deadlinepix SU22375

Tumour not spotted

A charity worker suing a hospital because doctors allegedly failed to spot a brain tumour has lost hearing in his left ear after undergoing surgery to remove a golf-ball-sized lump.

Ian Turner, 35, was forced to have an operation to remove the acoustic neuroma on Monday, September 1, after the tumour was allegedly missed by a neurologist two years ago, following a CT brain scan.

Mr Turner, from Sutton, issued a writ against St Helier Hospital for negligence last month.

His partner Amy, 29, said he had now lost his hearing in his left ear and was unable to close his left eye properly, leaving it open for infection, following the surgery at St George's Hospital.

Last month Mr Turner, a personal advisor for a charity, told the Sutton Guardian he was angry that the disabilities – an accepted risk of the operation – could have been avoided if the tumour had been caught earlier.

by JULIA KENNARD

jkennard@london.newsquest.co.uk

Amy, who is 20 weeks pregnant, said Mr Turner was still in hospital following surgery by neurosurgeon Henry Marsh – made famous on television for performing brain surgery on conscious patients – and would face a long recovery.

She said: "He has lost his hearing in his left ear and cannot close his left eye fully.

"It could improve but we will have to wait and see.

"Fortunately they have managed to save his facial nerve so he should not lose much control over the left side of his face.

"He wasn't very well to begin with and he's still a bit weak, he used to be a very lively and now he looks like an old man.

"But hopefully he will improve – he's a strong man and I'm very proud of him."

Mr Turner told the Sutton Guardian that his nightmare began in 2005 when he began having daily headaches and sickness.

As his symptoms persisted he was given a CT scan by a neurologist at St Helier Hospital, in the spring of 2006 and told there was "nothing abnormal".

It was not until July this year that he had an MRI scan and was later told that he had a four centimetre tumour in his head.

St Helier Hospital press officer Simon Morgan said he was unable to comment on the case while it was being investigated.

He said: "We are carrying out an investigation in relation to Mr Turner's claim and we will respond to him in the near future."

Guards, guards: Westcroft Leisure Centre where a mother-claims she had to rescue her child after lifeguards stood by gossiping

Left at the deep end

by JAMES PEPPER
jpepper@london.newsquest.co.uk

A mum who feared her seven-year-old son was going to drown in a leisure centre pool had to dive in to save him while two pool attendants allegedly "gossiped" next to him.

Kelly Adair, 32, was horrified to see her son Alexander struggling in deep water after coming down a slide at Westcroft Leisure Centre on August 12.

According to Mrs Adair, two pool attendants ignored a lifeguard's warning whistle and carried on talking while her son just managed to stay above water to shout: "I can't swim."

Believing that her son was in imminent danger, the healthcare assistant saw no option but to save her son herself.

Mrs Adair said: "Two boys just stood there gossiping while Alex nearly drowned. I was absolutely appalled at their lack of concern for my son, or any other child's safety. Alexander shouldn't have been on the slide anyway as he had the wrong band on. Children are not allowed down the slide unless they have a red wristband that proves they can swim 25 metres. Alex had a yellow one."

Alexander, seven, who attends Stanley Park Junior School was shaken up by the experience. Mrs Adair said: "Alex was crying his eyes out when he got out of the pool. He was so scared. I cannot believe the two lifeguards could show such a lack of responsibility. They saw the lifeguard on the tall chair waving her hands, but they just seemed to shrug their shoulders."

Mrs Adair was invited back to the leisure centre last week to discuss the incident, but she was angered when the manager didn't show up.

A council spokesman said: "GLL, who operate the Westcroft Leisure Centre on behalf of Sutton Council, has confirmed an incident took place on August 12.

"Following the incident, an investigation was immediately carried out. As a result of the investigation, the staff were dealt with appropriately and procedures reiterated to staff to ensure our highest standards on customer safety and our 'swim safely' policy are rigorously followed.

"Sutton Council and GLL would like to extend our apologies to Mrs Adair and her son for the alarm and distress the incident must have caused."

Chef cracks egg contest

by JAMES PEPPER
jpepper@london.newsquest.co.uk

A chef has proved he has the "eggs factor" after getting through to the national final of a cooking competition.

Gary Parsons, 37 from Wallington, delivered his signature dish of poached egg, panchetta and cockles with hollandaise sauce on buttered spinach and a toasted muffin in the regional finals in Brighton last week.

The dish was presented to a panel which included the inventor of the banoffi pie, Ian Dowding.

Five hundred entries were narrowed down to 12 finalists in each region. Finalists were asked to poach the perfect egg before creating their signature egg-based dish.

Mr Parsons, the head chef at the Queen Elizabeth Conference Centre in Westminster said: "The secret to poaching the perfect egg is simple. Boil the water with white wine vinegar, turn it down so the bubbles have gone, then use a whisk to create a whirlpool in the middle of a deep pan – not a frying pan as Gordon Ramsay says, because that makes the egg flat. Crack your egg into a cup and drop it into the whirlpool.

Egg-static: Gary Parsons won the regional round of Face of Eggs 2008 Deadlinepix SU22781

"I was totally shocked to win. When they called out Gary, I was looking around for another person to stand up, it was quite funny actually.

"The signature dish is an adaptation of what is called a 'Welsh breakfast'. I went camping in Swansea a few years ago and had a breakfast of poached eggs, cockles, bacon, fried bread and laver bread – a Welsh delicacy made from the seaweed laver. I wanted to change the seaweed for spinach as it's a bit more politically correct and I think the texture and taste complimented the dish better."

Mr Parsons will now compete against regional winners from across the UK in the Eggs Factor final in London on 6 October. Michelin-starred celebrity chef Paul Merrett will be drawing on his expertise to decide just who will be crowned the "Face of Eggs 2008".

Did you try the recipe? Tell us about it at yourlocalguardian.co.uk

Poached egg, smoked bacon and cockles with hollandaise sauce on buttered spinach and a toasted muffin x 4

Ingredients:
Egg x 4
Water
White wine vinegar
Smoked streaky bacon (lardons) 150g
Fresh cockles (cooked) 200g
Spinach 200g
Unsalted butter 15g
English muffins (toasted and buttered) x 2

Hollandaise sauce ingredients:
Unsalted butter 100g
Egg yolk x 1
Half tablespoon warm water
Squeeze of lemon

Salt and pepper for seasoning

1. To make the hollandaise sauce, melt the butter in a sauce pan, leave it to cool slightly and then the butter will have separated, only use the clear butter oil, not the buttermilk at the bottom. Add the egg yolk to the water in a bowl and whisk over a pan of hot water until lighter in colour and thickened. Take off the heat and slowly add the clear butter oil until thick and all the butter has gone. Add the lemon juice and season. Keep warm.

2. Heat a frying pan until smoking, add the smoked bacon and cook until golden then add the cooked cockles. Keep warm.

3. Wash and pick the stalks off the spinach. Heat a pan on the stove, then add the butter, then the spinach and cook until it has wilted. Season.

4. Fill a saucepan with two-thirds water and a third vinegar, bring to the boil and stir to make a whirl pool using a whisk, drop the egg in and cook for 3-3.5 minutes.

5. While the egg is cooking take a warm plate and place the toasted muffin in the centre, then place the spinach on top, add some of the hollandaise to the bacon and cockle mix and stir in, then spoon some of the mix on to the spinach. Remove the egg from the water with a slotted spoon, drain on to a clean towel and place on top of the cockles and bacon. Then spoon some of the hollandaise sauce around the plate.

Tomy to you: The longest toy train set in the world

Best train ever

Sutton-based Tomy has broken the Guinness World Record for the world's longest train set.

Although it is still yet to be officially confirmed by Guinness, it beat the previous record set in Japan in 2006 by over 150 metres.

The 10,550 piece set made a track totalling 1,804m (6,000ft) in length – long enough to stretch around the Wembley pitch five times.

The record was broken in Staffordshire last month.

Way forward for St Helier

by HELEN CRANE
hcrane@london.newsquest.co.uk

Patients could be receiving care in one of the new health centres which will eventually surround the new-look St Helier Hospital in just two years time.

The £215m project which will see St Helier Hospital undergo a £140m rebuild is about to go to NHS London for approval once the plans are given the go ahead by Sutton and Merton Primary Care Trust.

Twelve new wards will be built on the site of Ferguson House at St Helier. The hospital will eventually have nearly 350 beds, half of them in single rooms.

The four new care centres, at the Nelson Hospital, Wimbledon, the Wilson Hospital, Mitcham, the Shotfield Health Centre in Wallington and another at St Helier based by the main hospital, will cost about £57m.

St Helier will also host a £5m urgent care centre for patients who do not need to be admitted through A&E.

Additional funding is going to create intermediate treatment teams to care for patients in their own homes.

The future of Epsom Hospital is not included in the Better Healthcare Closer to Home plans because its future is now in the hands of Surrey PCT. Services for women and children are also not included as they are under review.

The local care centres are expected to provide GP services, pharmacies, outpatient clinics, community mental health services and other therapeutic and diagnostic services. Minor procedures will also be carried out there.

Sixty beds will be provided at the Wilson Hospital for patients who do not need to stay in the main acute hospital.

It is expected that the local care centres will be open from 8am to 8pm Monday to Friday while the Wilson centre will be open 12 hours a day, seven days a week, to provide out of hours primary care services.

There may in future be another care centre at the Sutton Hospital site run by the Royal Marsden NHS Foundation Trust, which is investigating the possibility of extending its services.

Chief executive of the PCT Bill Gillespie said: "At last we can see a clear direction which we believe will result both in much more care being provided close to where people live and the major rebuilding of St Helier.

Cinéma vérité: A French TV show filmed in Wallington Grammar School last week

French film school

by JULIA KENNARD
jkennard@london.newsquest.co.uk

Students at Wallington County Grammar School are to be the stars of a French TV show.

French film company TF1 came to the school last Thursday and filmed the students as they arrived and followed them as they sat through assembly and several lessons, including rugby.

Admissions manager Tina Marden said the school was selected because of its traditional and old-fashioned values.

She said: "They wanted to compare our school with its more formal ways with a French school that has more informal practices.

"We still have the house system, the prefect system and the students can't speak when walking to classes – they let off steam during playtimes instead.

"The children also stand up when staff come into the room and we check they are wearing the appropriate uniform when they come into school."

Mrs Marden said the students, who have to complete the 11-plus entry exam to get into the school, were no stranger to being filmed.

They were shown on Channel 4 programme Admission Impossible two years ago and former pupil and Crimewatch presenter Nick Ross once led a camera crew around the school as part of a programme on his formative years.

TF1's UK correspondent Nicolas Bellet said the students would have about two minutes of glory on the show to be aired later on in the year.

He said: "Their French peers might well be impressed with their attempts to speak the French language – they were not that bad having come back from a holiday, but I'm sure they will get better as the term goes on."

'40 YEARS OF HEEL & ARCH PAIN - GONE!'

Patient David Wilkinson: 'It's like a miracle and has changed my life'

After 40 years of agonising foot pain David Wilkinson finally found the answer to his prayers!

Since childhood David Wilkinson had suffered from painful feet. But now it had become so uncomfortable he could barely walk to the bathroom in the morning and every day he longed for relief from the searing pain in his heels.

David, 64, from Hampshire, was suffering from Plantar Fasciitis, a condition where the ligament type structures that support the arch of the foot start to inflame and small tears can occur throughout these structures, causing excruciating pain in the heel and/or arch of the foot.

He went to his GP who prescribed anti inflammatories and cortisone injections, but neither gave any real relief. In the following years David tried all kinds of treatments including physiotherapy, podiatry, a range of foot pads and prescription orthotics, but again to no avail.

Money-back guarantee

'Everybody seemed to have a name for the pain I was getting but I couldn't work out why nobody could help me!' says David. 'This went on for years as I went in and out of surgeries, trying every method of self-help available.' In 1990 his condition started to deteriorate and in 1997 he was told he would need an operation to release the 'plantar ligament' underneath each foot. 'It sounded drastic to have an operation, but I was now in agony. I had to go ahead with it,' explains David.

Sadly, neither operation was a success and recovery was long and painful. 'I was shattered to find it had not worked,' says David. The pain was worsening daily and walking was becoming unbearable.'

Years passed and in 1999 David retired on medical grounds. 'I was in disbelief, how could the pain have got so bad that it ended my career and worse still, how come no-one could help me? I wasn't suffering from a rare illness, it was heel pain!'

After various other failed attempts to find help over the next five years David was reading the paper when he noticed an advert offering 100 per cent guaranteed relief from heel pain. 'I didn't take a lot of notice,' explained David. 'It was just another gimmick, I had heard it all before,' he remembers.

Free Consultation

David saw the article several times. Eventually he called the number and requested an information pack. He read it with interest — these people actually sounded as if they could help. The clinic used a 3D laser scanner which measures the foot 64,000 times every inch and produces orthotics to an accuracy of 1/10,000th of an inch.

The 3D optical laser scanner at the Parish & Bell Clinic

David's nearest clinic was located south of London. He was shocked, it seemed a fairly long way to travel. But then he noticed that only one visit was usually necessary and so the clinic actually helped patients from all over the world.

David took the plunge and booked an appointment. What were a few hours of travelling after decades of pain?

He arrived at the clinic for an assessment and was impressed. The staff were attentive, experienced and completely understood his pain. 'Their knowledge of heel pain amazed me,' he explained. 'Sadly, however, my story was not unique to them. In fact, it was more of a common occurrence. I decided to proceed with the orthotics — it was guaranteed to work, after all.'

Pioneers

Les Bailey, pioneer of the unique orthotic system used, Senior Biomechanics Consultant at the Parish & Bell Clinic and also author of The Layman's Guide To Foot And Heel Pain, explains: 'I suffered from Plantar Fasciitis myself in my 20s and found no help. I was an osteopath back then and was amazed at the lack of help or knowledge of the condition.

'This sent me on a mission to find relief and I was introduced to the 3D optical foot laser from America. This laser is now one weapon in our armoury. But it's our unique pioneered orthotics and experience in treating heel pain that allows us to achieve such dramatic results with patients who have suffered for decades. This enables us to give a 100 per cent money back guarantee* to clear up the pain.'

After 17 years of dealing with foot and heel pain, the clinic now receives patients from all over the globe achieving amazing success rates.

Three weeks later David's orthotics arrived and within a few days he was pain free.

'I couldn't believe it and still can't,' he exclaims. 'Forty years of suffering and it was banished in one visit. It's like a miracle for me. It has completely changed my life.'

The clinic also treats many other foot complaints including pain in the ball of the foot, ankle pain, Mortons Neuroma and shin splints.

Specialist models of orthotics including sports, golf, hiking, slim fits and many more can also be prescribed by the clinic.

A run for their money

A man who ran the length of Great Britain in just six days has raised more than £15,000 for charity.

Jeremy Dicks, from Carshalton, completed the run from John O'Groats to Land's End with eight colleagues from Sodexo Defence.

The run was part of a wider campaign to reach a fundraising target of £50,000 for the Stop Hunger campaign, which funds projects dedicated to combating poor nutrition in local communities.

The eight runners split into two teams, each with the use of a van to enable runners to rest. Runners took it in turns to run for an hour at a time while one person drove, one navigated and the other rested in the back.

by JAMES PEPPER
jpepper@london.newsquest.co.uk

After crossing the border into England, the teams made speedy progress south, braving damaged thigh muscles, swollen knees and blisters to pass through Lancaster, Warrington, Shrewsbury, Gloucester and Taunton on their way to Land's End.

Mr Dicks said: "I'd never done anything like this before. I was looking for a challenge and this seemed like a great team event.

"I play rugby for Sutton and Epsom and we run a lot in training, but nothing could have really prepared me for this. We ran about 30km every day.

"At first I actually didn't expect to make it through the week, but as soon as I realised I could run through the pain, I just got on with it.

"I feel very proud of everything we've achieved and I know everyone else is delighted."

Sheltered housing tenants hope council will clarify eviction plans

The disgruntled residents of Elizabeth House are expected to pose some tough questions at a council meeting tonight.

Residents of Mickleham Gardens, Pond Hill Gardens, Elizabeth House and Malden Road are furious at the planned demolition of the sheltered housing area in Cheam Village.

Sutton Council bosses decided in July that residents should be moved out while new "affordable housing" was built in its place.

Residents of Pond Hill Gardens organised their own committee last week.

The health and wellbeing overview and scrutiny committee meeting is planned for 7.30pm at St Dunstan's School, Cheam and residents were asked to send their questions in by last week.

Resident Marion Rainsford said: "Our committee has come up with about 23 questions, but we do not know which ones will be answered. They could just pick the ones they want to answer. We just hope to get a bit of sense out of these people."

Chairman of the committee Councillor Stuart Gordon-Bullock, said: "We will try to provide an explanation to as many points as possible."

The council has already backtracked on its proposals to kick out residents when the building work begins next year, saying it is "exploring the feasibility of keeping the most vulnerable people on site while the building work takes place".

The council has said: "The objective of the regeneration is to develop the site to provide new affordable home for older people and vulnerable adults. It is anticipated that this will include a mix of affordable older persons' accommodation, built to Lifetime Homes' standards, including provision for extra care patients and for those with disabilities."

It is one of the best tennis training schools in the country aiming to produce the next Wimbledon champion – and now pupils can take GCSE examinations. JAMES PEPPER goes back to the classroom at the Sutton Tennis Academy

Building future champions

by JAMES PEPPER
jpepper@london.newsquest.co.uk

It is only four days into the new junior pro tennis course at Sutton Tennis Academy, but already head coach Neil Carter looks worn out.

Mr Carter said: "The kids enjoy it more when the coaches get involved, and I want them to enjoy being on court, but unfortunately it means I'm exhausted."

The £25,000 a year course, which comprises full-time tennis training, complete with a distance learning style education all under one roof, is the first of its kind in the country.

The idea, although adapted from European and American models, was thought up by head coach Neil Carter – a former top 20 professional player in New Zealand.

"I was determined to make this dream a reality," said Carter. "Other academies around the world do a similar kind of thing and there is no doubt that it works. Young players are given intense tennis coaching while taking academic courses in the same building. It saves a lot of travelling about and disruption on both counts. We can keep them here all day, and they are not turning up late in the evening after school when they are tired.

"We have had the coaching facilities in place for some time, I just wanted to make sure that the education side of things was right. It is paramount to the course and to parents, but the tutors are doing a phenomenal job."

The cost covers the four to six hours a day tennis training with the coaches and also the one-to-one sessions. It also pays for equipment, exams, IT facilities and up to four hours school tuition a day.

"It is a lot of money, but we are running the course at cost price, we are not making any money from it," said former tennis pro Lindsay Cox. "We have eight students on this course and we have already had interest in next year. We do offer some financial help, but that is at the discretion of Jeremy Bates, who is a former British number one and Sutton Tennis Academy director."

Education consultant Dave Johns, a former head teacher at a local high school, said: "It is a very big move for parents to take their children out of mainstream education and into an environment like this. We wouldn't recommend it to just anyone. This is designed for players who have a chance of become professionals. It is for those whose education and tennis training have been in conflict.

"In the past, players have been going to school and then coming to the centre for training afterwards. But this way, we can get the best out of the pupils physically and academically during the day."

Carter will ensure that the children, all aged between 11 and 14, are working as hard in the classroom as they will be on the courts.

He said: "We can afford to be quite flexible with the tennis, the education has a strict structure in place which we have to work around. I wanted to give the course as much as a playground feel as possible.

"I realise these kids will be missing their friends but I want them to enjoy themselves. We cannot put too much pressure on them, we want them to feel normal.

"Parents have put a great deal of trust in us, and considerable finances, but they are fully behind the course. My phone has not stopped ringing since Monday, but that is a good thing, parents should be kept up-to-date on progress."

Reporter soundly beaten by children

I made it clear to nine-year-old Tiran Sanghera and 11-year-old Lana Rush that I was going to take it easy on them. In fact, I went so easy on them, I let them make me look stupid.

This gruelling and humiliating experience was probably my lowest sporting moment so far.

Both players served like pros and my forehand was no match for their lobs and smashes.

I had earlier bigged up my chances to beat the young players but after half-an-hour it was clear I was outclassed.

It reminded me of a 2001 exhibition match, where a notoriously cocky Pat Cash fancied his chances against a 14-year-old prodigy by the name of Rafael Nadal.

Needless to say, Nadal took the housewives' favourite to the cleaners, as did these two young stars.

Top Tip

❑ Avoid removing stains using environmentally-harmful chemicals – stick to soda water instead. Pour the soda water on to a stain as soon as possible and the effervescence will bubble the staining substance to the surface, where you can blot it away.

The Big Picture

❑ Vast greenhouses that use seawater to grow crops could be combined with solar power plants to provide food, fresh water and clean energy in deserts, under an ambitious proposal from a team of architects and engineers.

The Sahara Forest project would marry huge greenhouses with solar panels which would turn deserts into lush patches of vegetation without the need to dig wells for fresh water, an activity that has depleted groundwater across the world.

School's win helped spur it to more green success stories

There are just two weeks left to noominate for a Sutton Green Guardian Award – which can make a real difference to people and organisations.

Wandle Valley School, winner of last year's Green Guardian Secondary School Award, has continued its good green form with a range of initiatives this year.

Headteacher Douglas Bone is keen for local people to nominate for the category and said that it has done wonders for his school.

He said: "People always ask us about the award when they visit. It was great to win ahead of our mainstream counterparts as well. It has given us confidence as a school and has also increased our prestige on a wider scale."

The special needs school, which was visited by Transport for London (TfL) chief Peter Hendy this year and features on a TfL sustainable transport video, has been encouraging more cycling from students and staff.

by JAMES PEPPER
jpepper@london.newsquest.co.uk

Headteacher Douglas Bone said: "We have gone further with our cycling initiative this year and started a bike loan service for staff and pupils. We maintain the bikes and look after them, all the staff and kids have to do is ride them to and from school. It has really cut down the congestion during the 'school run' hours."

Wandle Valley school has also been thinking more about food this year. The school, which has its own bistro and chef has been growing more fruit and veg in its allotments. The produce from which are being enjoyed by pupils, parents and staff.

Mr Bone said: "It's great to have the land to grow our own fruit and veg. These are London children and not all of them have grown food before. We are also keen recyclers and composters."

Q & A

Each week we will ask a question on a Green related subject. This week:

This week's question: How many batteries are sent to landfill annually?

Answer from last week: 25 per cent of carbon emissions in the atmosphere come from the way we travel.

By reducing the amount of journeys you make using you car you can cut down on the impact you carbon foot print has on the environment.

Cheaper bikes available for all

Local charities are encouraging people to recycle their bikes to help the unemployed homeless get back to work.

EcoLocal's BikeStreet project repairs unwanted bicycles and has recently teamed up with the Vine Project to make bicycles available to the homeless.

It now intends to make restored bicycles available for sale to any member of the general public whose budget does not extend to a brand new bicycle.

The charity's original aim was to improve the employability of homeless people by increasing their mobility.

BikeStreet has been restoring bicycles since 2006. It allows those in need of affordable transport, such as members of the local refugee network to get to work easier.

Anyone who has reasonable quality unwanted bicycles gathering dust in their garden shed should contact Michael or Gareth at BikeStreet on 020 8404 1520 or by emailing Bikestreet@ecolocal.org.uk.

Good as new: EcoLocal's BikeStreet project refurbishes old bikes

Eco-community to open its doors

The UK's largest carbon-neutral eco-community at BedZED will be opening its doors for guided tours as part of the Open House London showcase on September 20 and 21.

Members of the public will be able to enjoy rare access to almost 700 properties across London, free of charge, during the annual celebration of the city's finest buildings and monuments.

In Sutton a total of 11 venues are taking part this year, including council-owned Whitehall in Cheam, the Honeywood Museum and the Phoenix Centre in Wallington.

Councillor Ruth Dombey, deputy leader of Sutton Council, said: "Our borough has a rich architectural heritage with everything from medieval churches to world-beating, modern sustainable design."

Do you know of any environmentally friendly buildings? Why not nominate it for the Green Guardian Building Award? Winners will go through to a stunning area gala final at the Queen's Stand, Epsom Racecourse, on November 21. You can nominate online or by contacting Hannah Weston on hweston@london.newsquest.co.uk or call 020 8744 4223.

Good food doesn't have to cost the Earth

With food prices on the rise and concern about climate change never far in the background, EcoLocal has begun a programme of action to help local people access local, healthy, affordable food.

Local residents will be invited to have their say on local food issues and could be in with a chance of winning a hamper of locally grown produce.

EcoLocal have teamed up with Hackbridge environmental charity BioRegional to apply for National Lottery Local Food funding.

They have been successful at getting through the first stage of the bid.

The project will become part of One Planet Living in Sutton and will give local people the opportunity to buy fresh food, grown locally at affordable prices.

Other parts of the programme include starting up a local produce exchange network and promoting home food growing by running gardening courses and providing home food growing starter kits.

EcoLocal would like your opinions about local food issues. You can have your say online at ecolocal.org.uk. All completed questionnaires will be entered into a prize draw for a hamper of organic locally grown produce.

Do you know of any green project? If so, why not nominate it? Entries have to be in by September 22. You can nominate yourself, an organisation or someone you know online. Alternatively you can contact Hannah Weston on hweston@london.newsquest.co.uk or call 020 8744 4223.

Cooper good news event.

Friday 12 to Sunday 21 September 2008.

There has never been a better time to change your car, and there has never been a better time to talk to Cooper.

If it's not the supposed economic downturn or the price of fuel, it's the not so great British weather. If like us, you are tired of all the doom and gloom on the news at the moment, you should visit us during our special good news event between 12 and 21 September 2008.

At Cooper, we see things differently. And that's because, like our cars, we always respond positively to life's ups and downs. BMW's EfficientDynamics technologies lead the way in both fuel and tax efficient motoring, and the exclusive offers we currently have across the BMW range leave the competition green with envy. Driving a BMW has always been the ultimate experience, but never has ownership been so rewarding.

And, for 10 days, we are going to go that extra bit further to help you into the BMW you want. Between 12 and 21 September, we'll have some exceptional offers available across the entire BMW range and many available with immediate delivery. If you are thinking of changing your car, there will never be a better time to talk to Cooper.

Plus, with low rate finance packages, lower deposits and more for your old car, you may be surprised at how affordable it is to change your car. Whilst we can't make any promises about the weather during the 10 day event, you can be assured that we'll be doing our utmost to make your outlook a whole lot brighter.

We look forward to giving you a very warm welcome to Cooper during this special event.

Vigilantes tend garden

Garden grow: Nicci Sensier, Mandy Godfrey and John Holland BT22764

A group of garden vigilantes, tired of waiting for council landscapers, decided to up tools to finish a communal garden.

The gang of residents from Radcliffe Gardens has completed the work council contractors started in April.

One resident, Mandy Godfrey, 40, claims the council told her it was not going to do any more work to the communal garden, other than pull out some bushes, She was so incensed she formed the gardening group.

She said: "The contractors up-rooted some plants and that was about it. We really wanted the garden to look good so we decided to do it ourselves."

Together with some other residents

by JAMES PEPPER
jpepper@london.newsquest.co.uk

from her Radcliffe Gardens block of flats, she set to work on tidying the garden and planting some new shrubs and plants.

"We are so proud of what we have done," Miss Godfrey said. "We were out there is all conditions, rain, wind, and sometimes even sun."

She said that when council officials saw what a good job the residents were doing, they provided the hard working gardeners with some equipment. "We were grateful for the tools, we could have done with the manpower and for them to have done this to start with, but it has brought the community together, so its a case of every cloud has a silver lining, I suppose."

The vigilante gardeners have recently completed work on the area and believe that it will brighten it up for years to come.

Miss Godfrey said: "The council have given us some bark just to make it look a bit prettier, but we have done all the donkey work.

"People from the other two blocks have seen what we have done and are so impressed they plan to do the same. It's a gardening revolution."

The council was unavailable for comment.

The mayor helped hand out the funds from the Nork Park Music Festival

Festival's final funds?

Proceeds from the under-threat Nork Park Music Festival were presented to charities last week by Carshalton Beeches Rotary Club.

The festival, which may not go ahead next year due to lack of funding, raised money for three local charities.

The mayor of Sutton was in attendance to see cheques presented to the Sutton Alzheimer's Society, Wallington Girl Guides, and Open Door Youth Counselling.

The donations were from the proceeds of the Music in the Park concert held in June this year, which featured a Bee Gees Fever tribute band, and the Royal Philharmonic Concert Orchestra.

There was a generous contribution from the Wallington and Carshalton 41 Club to the mayor's charity and to the Down's Syndrome Charity.

Put poison fires out

Wake up you bonfire fanatics. This is a densely-populated area. This is not the heart of the country.

Garden bonfires smoke, like tobacco smoke, can contain the poisonous gas carbon monoxide. It can also contain carcinogenic (cancer causing) particles.

It is a curious double standard that if a commuter lights a cigarette on Epsom Station, he is breaking the law. However, there is nothing to stop someone lighting a huge garden bonfire with the resultant health risk to the people in the surrounding area.

Asthmatics, people with heart problems and children are particularly affected by bonfire smoke. Epsom and Ewell Council are doing great work encouraging recycling. Why don't they lead the way and ban bonfires at least for a start on allotments, which are a constant nuisance to surrounding houses?

Please save these trees

Like Mrs Thomas, from Ewell (Letters September 4,) I too have noticed the fading leaves on local horse chestnut trees, which is extremely noticeable in Crane Park, Twickenham where there are an abundance, of those beautiful trees.

According to research I have carried out, scientists have been aware of this problem for some time. According to forestry research 76 per cent of sample trees in the south-east showed signs of the disease, which may be "bleeding canker" bacterial disease. Nationally 50 per cent of trees could be affected.

Lets hope with present research and a national awareness of this problem that those much-loved trees can be saved.

NAME AND ADDRESS SUPPLIED

Calling for another battle against 'dangerous' mast

Three years ago I wrote to your newspaper about plans by Orange to erect an enormous telephone mast in the Court Recreation Ground and asking your readers to assist in objecting to the mast. The council refused planning permission after receiving many hundreds of objections.

02 have now indicated their intention to apply for planning permission to erect a huge mast at the Ebbisham Sports Club, immediately adjacent to the court recreation ground, in close proximity to two schools and next to residential areas with a high population of children. I should like to ask for your readers' support in opposing these plans once again.

The effects of exposure to emissions from the mast are a serious concern to local residents and should worry all users of the park and all local parents.

No planning application has yet been lodged but, if you object, please make your views known by writing to the chairman of the sports club, Trevor Staplehurst, at the Ebbisham Sports Club, Eastway, Epsom, Surrey, KT19 8SG and also to 02 at Network Consultation Helpdesk, PPIE3, 1 Brunel Way, Slough, Berkshire, SL1 1XL citing reference 41053, or you can email them at networkconsultation@02.com.

Please help stop the construction of this potentially dangerous mast.

Health chiefs should resign over consultants

I don't believe it. This is the Victor Meldrew moment isn't it?

There we were being told that Epsom Hopsital had to recover a £24m deficit, so much so that light bulbs were withdrawn, and yet we now learn that the executives were squandering our money on endless "consultants" to the tune of £1.67m which definitely could have been spent on patients' health and competent professional front line staff.

Apart from this farrago being totally outrageous, one of these expensive advisors was responsible for the 33 Clostridium Difficile related-deaths at another hospital, not to mention being coincidentally related to one executive.

If the executive management of this hospital is unable to make the decisions it is employed to do, without vast payment to bureaucratic consultants ensconced in thickly carpeted offices with rubber plants, then they should resign at once and make way for those who can concentrate on the proper interests of patients and staff.

DR TED BAILEY

High price: Epsom General Hospital spent £1.67m on consultants' fees

Let my neighbour see light

Mrs J Thomas is indeed right to suggest that complaining about the height of Leylandii is madness. You pay up front and wait a very long time for the feeble arm of Epsom Council to wave a threatening feather at the owner of the offending trees.

I joined two of my neighbours in taking action against the owner of a row of Leylandii which, at a height of 10 metres, entirely blocked out the light from my neighbours' gardens. The fee was £150 and the action was started in June 2006. In October 2006 the council served the owner of the trees an Asbo, giving him until September 2007 to take action, with six months overlap to fulfil his obligations. Needless to say, having patiently waited until March 2008, we had to contact the council to remind them of their obligations. The trees were then hacked, with a variation in height reduction according to each tree and the "height" was confirmed by the council as being 7.3m – two years after our original action.

My neighbour's garden is still deprived of the light it is entitled to receive.

'Rude, ignorant people' should give some space

I'm compelled to write about the lack of personal space everywhere in the borough. Whether it's in your car or queuing in a shop.

I was queuing in a shop in Epsom town centre with my two children, the youngest in a pushchair, and the lady behind me was so close I could feel her breathing on my neck.

I asked politely if she could move back, which she did, but the couple behind her took offence, saying I was rude to ask and if it bothered me I should move forward. I kindly pointed out if I moved forward i would have hurt the lady in front of me with the pushchair and would it be right to do so? I got no reply from the old couple or the lady.

Rude ignorant people. Give people back their personal space, there is not much left in this world and yet others think they can take, take, take.

L THORPE
Epsom

Finally – a place to stay

In nearly every town in England there is a hotel in the city centre but Epsom has been lacking this until now – the new Holiday Inn opened its doors to guests last week. Whilst not in the town – its up on the Downs – it will certainly provide much-needed accommodation for visitors here with 120 bedrooms. Once the new grandstand is open, which will provide many facilities other than to watch the racing, we will be putting Epsom back on the map.

MRS J THOMAS
East Ewell

We're branching out for help

In answer to Mrs J Thomas of Ewell, it is very sad to see the Horse Chestnut tree looking so brown and almost burnt, but its not all doom and gloom.

We at Bizzy Lizzy Nursery behind Ewell Court House get asked all sorts of questions, and have been doing some homework on this subject. We have, in fact, placed an interesting article on this on our notice board at the nursery. The problem is likely to be a leaf miner, Cameraria Ohridella, which has been with us since about 2002.

This pest will not stop the tree from leafing normally next year, but, in order to reduce the effects, it is desirable to collect all fallen leaves and burn or store them in sealed bags for a year to kill the infestation. Alas, if there are rusty brown streaks down the trunk and main branches this could be Horse Chestnut bleeding canker. This is a much more serious problem which can eventually kill these lovely trees.

BIZZY LIZZY
Ewell Court House

It's a private plea for cash

We complain about the power companies and their huge profits, but who privatised them in the first place? Let the MPs who voted for privatisation be made to contribute to the costs now being incurred by the people of this country. Come on, let's see some real political accountability for once.

Residents stranded by level crossing

A faulty level crossing gate in Ashtead left motorists stuck for almost an hour last night.

If this is the level crossing that I'm thinking of, then this isn't just any level crossing.

It's a level crossing on the only access road to two housing estates that lie between the railway line and Ashtead Common, which, between them, contain 637 dwellings.

There are, however, two footbridges and a further two pedestrian level crossings, which the emergency services could pull up beside.

And if absolutely necessary for emergency purposes, I suppose a small off-road vehicle could be brought in across Ashtead Common, via Woodcock Corner; after all, what happens when people are taken ill on Ashtead Common itself?

But it's not ideal.

Being realistic, if there was really an emergency on this estate, then Network Rail would have to shut down the line, and all train services between Leatherhead and Epsom would have to be suspended indefinitely.

Even when the level crossing is functioning correctly, emergency vehicles cannot run the risk of being forced to wait trains to pass; the trains will have to stop to give way to the emergency services.

And if the gates fail, the emergency services will simply have to force the gates, although the gates probably have a manual override that emergency services can use.

Magic bus: Cheam Rotary club helped raise £9,000 for the young carers' trip

Young carers get respite at Disney

by JULIA KENNARD
jkennard@london.newsquest.co.uk

Seventeen young carers have just returned from a luxury weekend in Disneyland Paris.

The young people, who care for members of their own families day and night, were given a well-deserved reward by Cheam Rotary Club.

Howard Smith, last year's president of Cheam Rotary and recently retired hospital chaplain at St Helier Hospital, organised the outing and asked fellow members to help raise £9,000 to fund the trip.

The carers were taken by coach to St Pancras and then on to a Eurostar train direct to the magic kingdom, where they stayed at the Dream Castle Hotel and visited the Disneyland Park and the Walt Disney Studios.

Mr Smith said: "Thank you so much to all you people out there in Cheam who supported us. This was a life-changing experience for us all."

The escorts on the trip were Howard Smith, Helen Smith, Naomi Smith, Marcel and Ruth Markan and Alan Bone, all from Cheam Rotary, plus Becky Griffiths and Helen Yately from the Sutton Carers Centre.

Pupils at Kingston Grammar take part in a waterrocket project

At forefront of educational thinking

Founded by Queen Elizabeth I in the 14th century Lovekyn Chapel, Kingston Grammar School is now one of the most innovative and successful co-educational schools in the country.

Boys and girls learn together in a friendly, supportive atmosphere, where high academic standards are expected and achieved. Excellence and access are its watchwords.

Located in the heart of Kingston upon Thames, with convenient bus and rail links serving a wide area, the school has well-equipped facilities which include the landmark Queen Elizabeth II building.

This includes a performing arts centre with a theatre, drama department and music school, and a sixth form social and study centre.

The 22-acre sports ground and boathouse by the Thames opposite Hampton Court Palace provide a stunning venue for sporting activities.

Examination results are among the best in the country and a new sixth form programme puts Kingston Grammar School at the forefront of 21st century educational thinking. The co-curricular provision is at boarding school level, with a wide range of activities to develop students' talents, so that they emerge as well-rounded young adults. It offers a relevant and challenging education for boys and girls in the 21st century

In 2009, the school will celebrate the 700th anniversary of the consecration of the Lovekyn Chapel.

Fulfilling your child's all-round educational needs

"I don't believe we could have found a better school in the country to bring out the best in both our sons," said oneHomefield parent.

Homefield is a preparatory school for 430 boys aged two and a half to 13, housed in an extensive purpose-built complex complemented by a spacious state-of-the-art Early Years' Unit and a two-acre adjoining playing field.

New science laboratories, art, design, technology and music suites, as well as an enlarged learning resource centre will open this month.

Rated by The Sunday Times Parent Power as "Among the best performing schools in Greater London", Homefield is renowned for its family atmosphere, small class sizes, the fulfilment of individual potential, the openness of communication, the provision of specialist teaching at the earliest appropriate opportunity and its all-round academic, musical, dramatic, and sporting achievements.

Seventeen scholarships have been won this year to Westminster School, King's College Wimbledon, Whitgift School, Trinity School, Reeds School, Ewell Castle and St John's School. All of its Common Entrance candidates have again safely qualified for the senior school of their choice.

Bramley's accolade

Little Bramley Nursery, part of Walton-on-the-Hill's Bramley School for girls, has just received a giant pat on the back.

After a recent government Ofsted inspection in May, it was judged to be "outstanding in all areas of education and care".

The inspector's report commented that "the quality of teaching and learning is outstanding, the leadership and management equally impressive and outstanding, while the partnership between parents and the teachers reached the highest standards and were outstanding".

Headmistress Paula Burgess, said "We were delighted but not surprised with the results. It is a great accolade to all the staff who teach at Little Bramley and Reception that they should score so highly. It is a standard we are proud to maintain throughout the whole school".

Little Bramley employs nine fully qualified and committed teachers and staff who ensure sessions are happy and inspiring in the purpose- built nursery.

For the busy or working parent, early morning and after school care are available. For more information on Bramley School and Little Bramley Nursery call 01737 812004 or visit its website bramleyschool.co.uk

An inspiring platform for careers in performing, visual and digital arts

The BRIT School is Britain's only state-funded school providing vocational education in the arts for 14 to 19 year olds. Students can start either in Year 10 (aged 14) or Year 12 (aged 16).

Courses are offered in broadcast and digital communications (media), dance, music, musical theatre, technical theatre (Year 12 entry only), theatre and visual arts and design, as well as the usual National Curriculum subjects.

The school has been mentioned a great deal in newspapers as a result of the successful performing careers of former students such as Kate Nash and Adele.

However, it is about much more than producing successful performers: its focus is to educate young people for any of the many career choices available in the performing, visual and digital arts.

Former BRIT School students are just as likely to be found in talent spotting, marketing, sponsorship, technical, design and digital editing positions within the creative industries.

Ofsted inspectors rated the school as 'outstanding' when they visited in February this year, basing this on the broad and balanced education it provides, as well as on its excellent exam results.

It focuses not only on performing, but also on the technological, copyright and business aspects of the industry as well as developing valuable transferable skills – working in a team, co-operation, respect for others and problem-solving.

These are priceless in the world of work, both within the arts and elsewhere.

Further information about the School, including more on our exam results and a link to the Ofsted report, can be found at brit.croydon.sch.uk

Enjoy success at Carshalton College

Carshalton College is still an option for those wanting a place at college this September. It is not too late to enrol at the college which specialises in vocational and apprenticeships programmes designed to provide students with employable skills, training and qualifications.

Choosing a college and the right course can be a minefield for some students leaving school. It's one of the first big decisions they will make about their future, and there are a host of factors for students and parents to consider.

One Level 3 IT student at Carshalton College said: "I came to Carshalton College because my parents heard it was good. It was great discovering that other students were interested in IT as well. If you're thinking about coming to college don't hesitate".

Its Information Technology (IT) students have enjoyed a 91 to 100 per cent pass rate. Ninety five per cent have gone on to university. Many go on to work in the IT industry. You can enjoy the success many of its students achieve, by enrolling at the college. There are still limited places available on full-time, part-time, apprenticeship and higher education courses for school leavers, mature students and the employed. How a new boiler could cut your energy bills

If you are worried about rising gas bills, installing a gas condensing boiler could be the answer and a new one could save between 30 and 40 per cent on your annual gas bill.

And one company worth contacting is Interheat. It has been established more than 20 years and has the expertise and experience to install an energy-efficient system to cater for customers' requirements.

It was launched by brothers Michael and Peter Wells who have a combined experience in the gas trade of 80 years.

They were trained initially by British Gas and set up the business and shop in Carshalton, selling gas fires, fireplaces, cookers and central heating.

The company has a team of fully qualified and well-trained heating and plumbing engineers and the company is a registered member of CORGI.

Interheat also undertakes grant-maintained installations of central heating for local authorities in London and Surrey. The showroom is open between 8.30am and 5.30pm Monday to Friday and between 9am and 1pm on Saturday.

The last of the summer wine

I'm a pretty optimistic person but I've given up believing the meteorologists' claims that we're still going to get a proper summer, writes Lucy Corry. The current weather pattern - grey giving way to occasional flashes of sun or showers is as good as it's going to get before the autumn leaves begin to fall.

The only thing that's keeping me going is the memory of a long, hot January and February in New Zealand earlier this year.

While Britain shivered in arctic temperatures, happy New Zealanders (and lucky tourists) basked in the best summer in a decade. The days were long, the skies were blue – and on the West Coast of the South Island, the beaches were blessedly empty.

But before you send in hate mail, there is a way that you too can benefit from the long, hot Antipodean summer. All that hot weather meant good things for the country's famous sauvignon blanc, which has just started hitting UK shelves.

Experts and amateur drinkers alike are calling the '08 vintage one of the best in recent years. Certainly Montana Marlborough Sauvignon Blanc 2008 (£7.99, available at most supermarkets) beats last year's hands down. Villa Maria Sauvignon Blanc 2008 from the sunny Hawke's Bay is another cracker. It's £9.19 and also widely available.

Closer to home, you can recreate the illusion of a proper summer by opening a bottle of rose. Spanish Vina Decana Rosado, which was commended by judges in the Decanter 2008 Wine Awards, won't break the bank at a tiny £3.29 from Aldi.

Another great discovery from early in the summer was Taste The Difference Gavi 2007 (£6.99 at Sainsbury's).

It's light, fragrant, and very drinkable. Pour yourself a glass, lie back on the sofa, and think about your next summer holiday.

Put some sparkle back into late summer with a glass of Philippe Michel Cremant du Jura Sparkling Chardonnay. The Jura is a much-underrated region of France – and the wine isn't bad either.

This is champagne in all but name. Pick up a bottle or two for £5.99 each from Aldi.

Robins and Day launches special limited edition

Robins and Day customers in Morden are being given the opportunity to own a limited edition version of one of Peugeot's most popular cars, as the dealership showcases the striking 207 Monaco.

Building on the success of the iconic 207 hatchback, the highly desirable Monaco has been developed exclusively for the Robins and Day network, and offers high specification for an affordable price, with a bespoke black and red interior leather trim to give the ultimate feeling of luxury.

As Peugeot's largest dealership group, Robins and Day has commissioned this eyecatching new model, which will only be available from one of its 38 dealerships that are located across the UK, including the Robins and Day dealership in Morden Road.

Available in a choice of four exterior colours, Thorium Grey, Flamenco Red, Onyx Black or Aluminium, this sophisticated car gives drivers a feeling of style; with black leather seats featuring carbon fibre effect inserts and red cross-stitching, along with matching leather gearstick gaiter and door inserts.

The car bears the exclusive Monaco badge and Robins and Day customers will be given co-ordinating carpet mats, as well as the option of metallic paint and alloy wheels.

Starting at £9,742 on the road, the 207 Monaco provides exclusive luxury at an affordable cost and is the lowest priced car currently available in the UK to come with a full leather trim.

Other specifications include fog lights, six airbags, remote central locking, ABS and electric front windows.

Featuring a fully adjustable driving position, impressive power steering and a slick gear change, this model has an impressive 1.4 8v petrol engine and provides an excellent driving experience.

James Weston, dealer principal at Robins and Day Morden comments: "The 207 Monaco is exclusive to Robins and Day and we are receiving a lot of interest from customers who are keen to get their hands on one of these limited edition versions of Peugeot's popular 207.

"With all four colour options now on display, visitors to our dealership can view this luxury new model, and find out about the great finance offers available, with monthly payments starting from less than £190 a month on our Passport deal."

Robins and Day Morden is also celebrating the arrival of the limited edition 207 Ceilo and 207 Coupé Cabriolet ELLE, which have been launched by Peugeot just in time for summer.

THEATRE: Richard III, Charles Cryer Theatre

Will Gore

Yuppie makeover: Bob Hamilton as RIchard III

Time for a Shake up

Rough Mechanicals are a theatre company on a mission: to bring Shakespeare to the masses. Formed in 2005, the troupe have previously brought us A Midsummer's Night Dream and Macbeth, but now they are tackling one of Shakespeare best known history plays – Richard III.

Bob Hamilton, one of the founders of Rough Mechanicals, will play the dastardly king in the production which runs at the Charles Cryer Studio Theatre from Thursday, September 18 to Saturday, September 20.

How has Hamilton approached portraying such a famous character? "There are some great performances on film by Sir Laurence Olivier and Sir Ian McKellen, so there is no point in ignoring that. We have tried to stay true to the text and my portrayal seems to have sorted itself out.

"We had the idea that when Richard is talking to the audience he is telling the truth. The Cryer space allows us to really communicate with them and that was one of the things that inspired us to put the company together."

And it is this attempt to communicate Shakespeare's plays with a direct clarity that forms the crux of the Rough Mechanical's approach.

"It is all about making the audience comfortable," says Hamilton. "We cut back the text and often telescope a couple of characters into one. We also have a few actors doubling-up roles and we try to give this a through line, making sure for example the characters fight on the same side in the play.

"We attract people from all over the local area and we aim to keep ticket prices low. Shakespeare is not everyone's cup of tea so it is about removing obstacles."

The production sets the play in a 1980s British city during the Thatcher era, and Hamilton believes this time of yuppiedom and go-getting suits Richard III perfectly.

He says: "We chose this setting because it is a very male-dominated play. Women are marginalised but get the chance to fight back. There is that feeling that he who sinks lowest, gets furthest, and of everyone being out for themselves."

> "There are some great performances on film by Sir Laurence Olivier and Sir Ian McKellen, so there is no point in ignoring that"

As well as spreading the gospel according to the Bard, the Rough Mechanicals experience is all about enjoying the journey from rehearsal room to the Charles Cryer stage.

"The rehearsals have been a joy, " says Hamilton. "There is a core of people in the company but we also have some newcomers to keep it fresh. When we first started Rough Mechanicals the idea was to get used to Shakespeare's language – the iambic pentameter and the poetry – and for it to be fun."

EVENTS: Cabaret Night, White Horse, Epsom

Show time: Gemma Gould will be backed by Duncan Eagles at the White Horse in Epsom on Wednesday.

Bar maid for success

The White Horse in Epsom is a pub with a great musical pedigree, hosting the ever-popular Epsom Jazz Club.

Now the hostelry is attempting to do for musical theatre what it has done for jazz with a cabaret night this Wednesday. Landlady and singer Gemma Gould is hoping the night will become a regular date on the pub's calendar. Will Gore reports.

What can people expect from the show?

It will be a night of musical theatre with well known songs from shows including Chicago, Hairspray and Cabaret – you can't do a cabaret night without it – alongside some less well known songs. There will also be songs from Oliver with some audience participation. I will be singing with backing from Duncan Eagles (founder of Epsom Jazz Club) on sax, Max Luthert on bass, Chris Nickolls on drums and Phil Merriman on piano.

Why musical theatre?

I'm passionate about it – I went when I was a child and still do now. I have always been into amateur dramatics but I stopped when I met my fiancee and had my son but I've always loved performing. It is a shame I had to stop but hopefully this will get me back into it. Reality TV shows have brought musical theatre back and I want to see if it will work in a pub. You can go up to town to see a show or a cabaret but with the credit crunch it is so expensive, so I want to give it to people for free and see if they like it.

Is there plans to make it a regular event?

We were the first pub in the Epsom area to do jazz and blues and if people like the cabaret we will make it a monthly event and widen its scope.

How have people responded to the idea?

It has generated positive feedback. There has been interest from the jazz crowd and our regular customers and I've had lots of comments including "Wow, that's a bizarre thing to do!" and "I'm surprised no one else has thought of it first."

Any pre-show nerves?

It's more worrying singing in the pub that is being up on stage, probably because the atmosphere is so intimate – I'll people able to see the crowd breathing. It will also be a challenge to portray all the different characters in the songs, but if I can sing karaoke then I can do this.

Will your experience working in the pub help when you are up on stage?

Acting is the same as working behind the bar. You need to be outgoing and have confidence and you must always have a smile on your face no matter what is going on in your life.

Cabaret night at the White Horse, 63 Dorking Road, Epsom, KT18 7JU, Admission free, 8pm. 01372 726622.

Band focus Worn Down

Damien Rice fans: Worn Down's Alex Wastnidge and Becci Higgs

Introduce yourself

Worn Down is mostly me, Alex Wastnidge, singing, playing acoustic guitar and harmonica. Becci Higgs also sings in several songs.

Sound/influences

The main influences would be alternative singer/songwriters, anti-folk artists and a little bit of post-rock. For instance Elliott Smith, Bright Eyes, Damien Rice, Jenny Owen Youngs, Jacob Golden, Jeffrey Lewis, Kimya Dawson, 65daysofstatic and Explosions in the Sky.

When did it all start?

I started Worn Down as an experiment with acoustic guitars, keyboards and recording techniques in late 2005. It was on and off until about 6 months ago when I started taking it seriously. Since then Becci has become basically a fully fledged member.

Any groupies?

What happens in Surrey, stays in Surrey...

Where do you play?

We play at the monthly Attic acoustic show in Ewell which we organise with our friend Gino D'Andrea. We've also played the Priory Bar in Reigate and Rockstock.

Best/funniest moment?

Playing at the Sutton bandstand without Becci and with a bad throat. After the set a man came up to me and said: "You're very good but you need better singer."

Best/funniest moment?

We forgot to promote one of the Attic shows so we played to about four of our friends and ended up covering a load of songs from Flight of the Conchords.

Any singles/EPs/albums?

Our self-released CD Careful Where You Tread came out on August 22. It is eight tracks long and can be bought at shows and from our webstore for a mere £4.

Song you wish you had written

9 Crimes by Damien Rice. We cover it sometimes.

Fantasy festival line-up

All the artists and bands I name dropped earlier playing, possibly in some sort of super group.

Club A2Z

Epsom Volleyball Club

Keep fit the fun way: Members of Epsom Volleyball Club

The history

The club was founded in 2000 and teams were entered in the Surrey League, made up of players from the local community and students attending Epsom College, where the club is based. The men's team gained promotion to Division One in 2005, but were relegated the following season and the ladies fortunes have also fluctuated. There is only one division for them, and they have consistently achieved a mid-table place. Club coaches are Ian McAllister, a former Scottish international, and Carole Rice, a former England international.

Season ahead

This season's matches begin in October. There will be a couple of pre-season tournaments during September – in Kingston on September 14 and a mixed team event on the September 21 at the Ashcombe Volleyball Centre in Dorking. This year there will also be a division for mixed teams – designed for players who may not get the opportunity to play regularly in the men's or ladies divisions. The club is a friendly one and needs more players regardless of standard!

Junior chance

The club is also seeking junior members, aged 12 –16 /18. There have been a number of youngsters come to training during the past two years, but it is hoped more will come to get involved in the sport.

Training times

Training is underway for the new season and takes place on Wednesday evenings. Junior training is from 6pm-7pm (term time only) and adult training is from 7pm to 8.30pm/9pm (all year). Training is at Epsom College Sports Centre, off Longdown Lane South, Epsom, KT17 4JQ.

NEW ROAD CAR TEST : GRANDE PUNTO ABARTH

A sting in its tail

Karl Abarth was already a five-time European motorcycle racing champion, something of an expert in the field of car modification and married to the secretary of Ferdinand Porsche's son-in-law when he established Abarth & C in 1949, writes Steve Walker.

This car tuning business began its association with Fiat in the early 1950s, specialising in making racing and performance modifications to the Turin manufacturer's products. Then, in 1971, Fiat brought the firm in-house and began using Abarth's expertise and scorpion badge on its quickest cars.

Today, Fiat is busy forcing the Abarth brand back into the limelight riding on the bodywork of fast Fiats like the Grande Punto Abarth.

The sight of a 1.4-litre engine greets you as you lift the Grande Punto Abarth's bonnet, not quite the power packed piece of plumbing that hot hatch enthusiasts might have been hoping for. But wait, this is the modern era and the latest technology can make 1,368cc go a long way.

With the aid of a Garrett turbocharger, the 1.4-litre T-Jet engine can deliver either 152bhp in standard form or an impressive 177bhp if you go for the range topping Esseesse (try saying that with a mouthful of Jacobs cream crackers) version. The figures that matter for the two versions are the respective 8.2 and 7.5s for the 0-60mph sprint and the 129 and 133mph top speeds. Rest assured, the Grande Punto Abarth is quick.

The Grande Punto Abarth is crawling with scorpions but pest control services will not be required. It's the Abarth scorpion coat of arms that crops up on the grille, the tailgate, the wheel hubs and mounted on each flank just behind the door handles.

To further emphasise the car's sporting prowess, the elegant shape of the standard Grande Punto is given more aggression with a redesigned front bumper sporting enlarged air-intakes and round fog lights. The side skirts and wheelarch extensions are in black plastic while the rear end gets the now obligatory diffuser effect as the plastic under body curls up into the back bumper. There's also a modest roof-top spoiler but overall, Fiat has avoided going too over the top with the look of the Abarth, preserving the classy lines of the standard Grande Punto in the process.

Standard equipment levels on the Grande Punto Abarth include Fiat's Blue&Me hands-free communications system, an MP3-compatible stereo, air-conditioning, tinted windows, cruise control and a multi-adjustable steering column.

Safety wise, there's plenty thrown in including front, side and window airbags, ABS and ESP stability control.

New Car Road Test : Lexus IS220d

A polished performer

First impressions were promising. A row of gleaming Lexus cars parked in the winter sun outside Rome's Fiumicino airport all neat proportioning, grown-up detailing, and purposeful stance, writes Andy Enright.

Looking for all the world like a Lexus GS that had been to the gym every day for six months, the IS 220d is going to sell on looks alone. Know that. BMW certainly will because this car has its sights firmly targeted on the 320d. For a good proportion of buyers, the Lexus has the Bavarian's measure.

I'm often asked whether car A or car B is better and the answer, inevitably, is 'it depends'.

Whether you'll take the Lexus or the Beemer is contingent on all manner of criteria, but let's just say for the time being that if you want a polished ownership experience with all the bells and whistles, shop Japanese.

Those more interested in wringing the chassis engineering genius out of the last tenth of the handling envelope will be better off buying BMW.

The ride on the standard 17in alloy wheels and suspension set up is very good, even the scabbiest Italian mountain roads failing to break the car's composure.

The steering is quick and accurate and the on-limit handling, as defined by the VDIM stability control system, is benign in the extreme.

Power out of a wet mountain hairpin with the engine right in the meat of the torque and you'll feel a mild muting of throttle response and a spot a flashing light on the fascia. No drama, no temptation to counter steer yourself (something that can royally confuse some stability control systems) and a rapid reapplication of full power once the car detects it's pointing in the right direction. Top marks.

The interior is an object lesson in how to make complex systems intuitive to access and operate. It's here that Lexus scores its most decisive victory over the BMW 3 Series.

The satellite navigation, audio and ventilation systems are all simple to use. Try changing the stereo's bass and treble on a BMW fitted with iDrive. If you can do it within 20 minutes of starting out, without recourse to a manual, mind, you're doing better than me and I've got a degree in IT.

In the IS 220d, you'll figure it out within 10 seconds the first time and the same goes for even the more complex functions.

The second biggest advantage the Lexus scores comes in after-sales service.

Here the company is second to none and Lexus dealers monotonously rate as having the best service offering year after year.

Judging by other Lexus products, it's doubtful you'll see much of them other than for routine servicing as again Lexus trounces all German rivals when it comes to economy.

This car is steeped in build and design integrity and an unswaying focus on how we use our cars. Try it and you'll understand.

THE LEARNER DRIVER ZONE

Taking Your Theory Driving Test

PART ONE - MULTIPLE CHOICE
Before you begin part one of the computer-based theory test, you'll be given instructions on how the test works. You can also choose to go through a practice session of multiple choice questions, to get used to the layout of the test and at the end of this session your real test begins. A question and several answer options will appear on the screen. You'll have to select the correct answer to the question by touching the screen. Some questions may require more than answer.
You will be able to navigate between questions and 'flag' those you wish to return to later. For cars and motorcycles you will be asked 50 questions in 57 minutes and the pass mark is set at 85 out of 100. You can choose to have a break of up to three minutes before starting the hazard perception part.

PART TWO - HAZARD PERCEPTION
After the break you'll be shown a short tutorial video clip about how the hazard perception test works. Once this test starts, you'll be presented with a series of 14 video clips which feature everyday road scenes. You'll answer through the use of a computer mouse button and the computer records your response times. In each clip there'll be a least one developing hazard with one clip featuring two. To achieve a high score you must respond to a developing hazard during the early part of its development, with the maximum score for each hazard being five. The pass mark for the car and motorcycle hazard perception test is 50 out of 75. Once you leave the examination room the test centre staff will then be able to give you your results for both parts of the theory test. Good luck.
To book your theory driving test, please see the DSA section below.

The Driving Standards Agency (DSA) is currently mid-way through a series of 'learning to drive consultations' being conducted across the UK. The Agency is inviting new and learner drivers as well as the more experienced motorists to come along and share their views and opinions on proposals for driving safety standards and improved driver education.

Everyone is welcome say the DSA, so to book your place at a local consultation, visit: www.dsa.gov.uk/learningtodrive. You can also join the online forum there, download the consultation booklet and send the DSA your thoughts on driving safety.

For all other enquiries and to book you theory driving test, please visit the DSA website: www.dsa.gov.uk or call 0300 200 1122.

BOWLS: Cheam Bowling Club, who recently finished as runners-up in the New Surrey Fours League, picked up another trophy by defeating Old Coulsdon BC in the men's final of the Past Times Trophy last Saturday.
Cheam 38 Old Coulsdon 35
Rink 2: Cheam Alan Gover, Mike Appleford, Daniel Morris, Mike McDonagh 26 Old Coulsdon 18. 3: Cheam Colin Popple, Chas Smith, Greg Barnett, Gary Stevens 12 Old Coulsdon 17.
In the women's final, Cheam Fields and hosts Purley were level as the last rink started their final end. With Purley holding shot with one bowl to come, the Cheam Fields skip drew unerringly to gain the shot – and win the match for her club by just one shot.

The over-45 veteran also produced the best age-graded performance in clocking 17 minutes, one second, as he continues his Berlin Marathon training schedule.

It was his fourth victory in 18 appearances at Banstead Woods and next up for Phelan is an appearance at the Robin Hood Half Marathon next Sunday.

Reigate Priory's Andrew Walker recorded a course personal best of 17 minutes, 22 seconds to finish second.

He is preparing for the Seven Oaks Triathlon next weekend. Tadworth's David Freeman was a further 14 seconds back in third.

Clive Edgington was first for the over-50s, four seconds ahead of the first U15s runner Connor Murphy.

For the super veterans, Stewart McIntyre (VM 60-64) posted 20.02.

Before the start, Alan Collis was presented with the Sweatshop shoe prize for his huge improvement during regular appearances in the event.

Dave Wilson holds a 79-point lead over Stephen Cooney in the yearly standings, with Claire Ballhatchet 195 points ahead of Lucy Ashdown-Parkes in the women's standings.

Weir's golden voyage is on

by TOM POLLAK
sports@london.newsquest.co.uk

Wallington-based wheelchair racer David Weir has made a confident start to his quest to win five Paralympic gold medals in Beijing.

Weir, who holds three world titles but has yet to top the Olympic dias, boosted his hopes in the 400m by qualifying for the final as the fastest of the eight racers.

Competing in pouring rain having been held up in the stadium for 10 minutes while a medals ceremony was completed, Weir powered to victory in his semi-final in 47.62.

China's Zhang Lixin, who set a Paralympic record of 46.75 seconds in winning the first heat on Monday, won the second semi-final in a much slower 48.52, but is still likely to prove Weir's greatest danger in the final.

Afterwards, Weir said: "It was very wet. I don't think I have raced in rain like that before. We also had to wait a long time in the cold.

"We were in the call room for 45 minutes and then we were delayed by the medal ceremony.

"I got through, that's the main thing.

"I'm still having problems with the cold and I'm feeling a bit tired.

"I think the 5,000m wore me out."

Weir, who is bidding to win golds in all track events from 400m to 5,000m and the marathon, cruised through his 5,000m heat on Monday night, posting a season's best of 10:21.27.

Weir said: "I knew it was going to be fast because the top four were in there and it was quite tough, but it felt comfortable."

He now faces a strong challenge from Australia's Kurt Fearnley and Mexico's Aaron Gordon in tomorrow's final.

A Knight to remember

by JOHN IVERS
sports@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kate Knight stunned everyone when she crossed the line in first place in the Collingwood AC Recurring Handicap, run over a 5.3-mile undulating course which started and finished at the club's base at Croygas Sports and Social Club in Mollison Drive.

Knight finished a full nine minutes, two seconds ahead of her predicted time to win the event.

Allan Rumbles was second to finish, having come in 1:27 under his allowance, while in third place was Melanie Johnstone, 1:16 under handicap.

In fourth came Martin Lloyd, 26 seconds under handicap, while fifth across the finish line was Chris Brooke, 15 seconds under handicap.

On Sunday, Steve Cooney and Melanie Johnstone competed in the Moray Marathon in and around Elgin, Scotland, with Cooney coming home in 28th place in a time of 3:22:24 and Johnstone finishing 61st in 3:44:12.

Epsom stick it to Bournemouth in friendly

by ANDY WHITE
sports@london.newsquest.co.uk

Epsom Ladies Hockey Club warmed up for the new season by drawing 5-5 with Surbiton and beating Bournemouth 5-0 in their latest two pre-season friendlies.

Epsom dominated much of the early play against Surbiton to go 3-0 up with goals from Paula Winsor (two) and Stacey Bone.

But Surbiton pulled one back before the break and added a further four in the second half.

Epsom eventually battled back, with Bone getting her second and Winsor completing her hat-trick to level the scores.

There were no such problems against National League side Bournemouth on Sunday, with Claudia Stanford scoring a hat-trick in the space of 10 minutes.

Epsom piled on the pressure and Bone scored her third and fourth goals of the weekend to put Epsom 5-0 up by half-time.

The second half saw Epsom maintain control of the game without adding to the scoreline but also not conceding, which will have pleased new head coach Alex Pizzey.

The team will continue their preparations on Saturday (11.30am) with another home friendly against Rover Oxford, also of the National League.

Meanwhile, Epsom's men's team defeated Woking 6-4 in their latest pre-season game.

Goals from Gary Scott, Anthony Williamson, Matt Heal (2), Wade Joubert and James Midmer sealed the victory.

Chris Allcock, temporarily in charge of the team, noted that there was a lot of hard work still to be done before the league matches kick off in early October.

Epsom compete in the round robin stage of the Surrey Cup at Old Cranleighans this Saturday.

Joyce: We need to get started on right note

by STUART AMOS
samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Sutton & Epsom forwards supremo Jimmy Joyce reckons his side have learnt from the mistakes of last season and will get their London Division One campaign started on the right note on Saturday.

Head coach Martin Knights's men travel to Hertford at the weekend knowing their hosts did a number on them twice last season.

The Rugby Lane club have brought in a host of new faces this season, with Guinness Premiership side Wasps providing academy trio Will East, Peter Elder and Tom Lindsay on season-long loans.

Sutton have welcomed back Kiwi centre Bryan Milne from a summer trial with Magners League team Ospreys, and drew 14-14 with National Division Three South Rosslyn Park's second string on Saturday in their final pre-season warm-up.

Centre East, on loan from Wasps' development side, and skipper Graham Hill scored Sutton's tries, both converted by fly-half Joe Goatley.

And Joyce reckons it is vital his side get off on the right foot as they bid to finish in the top six this season.

"The two games against Hertford last year were probably our worst two performances of the season and it is very important we go there with the right attitude," he said.

"We have got the nucleus of last year's squad and a smattering of new faces.

"I have no doubt the old guard will be using the memory of those two games as a motivating factor.

"There are a few injury concerns that could sort themselves out for the weekend, like Milne's ankle and Will East's damaged elbow.

"But, if we can get a full back-line out, we can compete with them and compete very well.

Joyce has been fine-tuning his forwards to help secure their side its share of possession from open play this season and is confident they will hit the ground running when action starts.

"The fitness work we have done has been very rugby specific and I would think we are better prepared than this time last year," he added.

"The boys have worked hard over the past two weeks to address their deficiencies in certain areas."

Sutton's next three games: Sept 13 Hertford (a), Sept 20 Jersey (h), Sept 27 Tring (a)

Releasing the ball: Sutton's fly-half Joe Goatley gets a pass away despite the attention of Park's defenders

No fall-out for Palmer

by STUART AMOS
samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Sutton United star Dean Palmer is expected to escape further punishment for throwing a garden rake at home fans in last week's 4-0 defeat at Wealdstone after being disciplined by the club.

Despite the punishment, United boss Paul Doswell defended his man, pointing out he reacted under extreme provocation.

"He didn't react the right way. It has been reported by the match referee, but I'm not expecting anything further," he added.

"Dean's disciplinary record is second to none in this league.

"He has only been sent off once in the past eight years, so you probably have an idea of the sort of stick he must have been getting."

Meanwhile, Doswell is ready to continue his experiment of using Craig Dundas in midfield.

The former Carshalton Athletic man is yet to score this season in contrast to nine-goal Gavin McCallum.

"Strikers are paid to score goals. Craig has been working hard for the team, but not finding the back of the net," said Doswell.

"There isn't much room for manoeuvre with regards to bringing people into the squad.

"I want to harness his work-rate in the team and, at the moment, centre midfield could be the place to do it."

A Seb-sational performance

by STUART AMOS
samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Brentford goalkeeper Seb Brown has revealed boss Andy Scott's last minute decision to hand him a first-team debut has given him a thirst for more.

The 18-year-old shot-stopper saved one shoot-out penalty and watched another sail over the bar as the Bees clinched a place in the second round of the Johnstone's Paint Trophy on Tuesday night.

The former Cheam High School student only discovered he was starting when he arrived at the ground for the game and performed heroics as Scott's side dumped League One Yeovil Town out of the competition.

Brown, in his first year as a professional, having spent two seasons at Griffin Park on the YTS scheme, repaid the manager's faith with a solid performance in front of just 1,339 fans.

And the Sutton youngster, who can't wait for another chance to prove himself, reckons he can only get better now he has broken his duck.

"There wasn't really time to be nervous. By the time I got to the ground the squad had been named and I was out doing my warm-up," he said.

"Once you get out there it is just another pitch and just another game really. Obviously, it was great to make my debut.

"It was pretty amazing to save a penalty in the shoot-out. Keepers should love them, because you can't lose.

"No one is going to blame you if you let one in. Only good can come out of it.

"The best feeling was saving a penalty. The buzz I got was amazing.

"It has given me a taste for more. I know now in myself that I can do it at this level. There will be times when I make mistakes or don't perform like I want to, but it will come."

Loanee Ben Hamer remains Brentford's undisputed number one, but boss Scott revealed he would be more than happy for Brown to deputise again.

"I've made the decision to have him as my number two. If I'm not confident enough to play him in these games he shouldn't be on the bench," he added.

"I'm delighted he did well. I told him to be positive, to treat it like any other youth team game he played last year and to enjoy it. I certainly think he did that."

On target: Adam Wilde scores for Sutton on Saturday Paul Loughlin from-the-lane.co.uk

Barber Adam aims to be a cut above

Winger Adam Wilde has had his fair share of injury heartache, so it was apt the former Cambridge United star opened his Sutton United goal account after yet another spell on the sidelines.

The 29-year-old barber, who signed a two-year contract at Gander Green Lane in the summer, missed the opening of the new Ryman Premier Division campaign with a groin strain.

Boss Paul Doswell reckons Wilde has been the missing link in the past four weeks, which have seen his side lack balance on both flanks.

As if to prove his point, Wilde bagged his first Sutton goal in his first competitive start in Saturday's 2-1 win at Horsham.

That result came five months after he missed his former club Eastbourne Borough's Blue Square South play-off final triumph over Hampton & Richmond Borough, and Wilde admits a similar experience is something he would rather avoid with United.

"Missing out on that is probably the most disappointing thing in my career," he said.

"It was a massive game, live on TV and in front of a lot of supporters.

"I got injured three weeks prior to the run-in and, although I was fit to play in the reserves, the lads went on a bit of a run and I couldn't expect to get back in the team for the final."

Timely boost for Hayden

by STUART AMOS
samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Carshalton Athletic manager Hayden Bird could welcome back Lee Bremner to the starting line-up for Saturday's FA Cup clash with Eastbourne Town, and the manager reckons it will give his side a timely boost.

The Robins have made an impressive start to the Ryman Premier League campaign, with 10 goals from Richard Jolly helping them to fifth place in the table after Saturday's 1-0 win at Hastings United.

But Bird believes Bremner can give the Robins' attack a different dimension and boost their hopes of building on their impressive early season form.

"He is a very different sort of striker to what we already have and he will add that extra bit of competition to the squad to keep players on their toes," he added.

"The prestige of playing in the cup is still the same for the players, but from the club's perspective there is a greater responsibility on the players.

"They must make sure they take the club forward as far as it can go in the competition. The money on offer has made these games much bigger."

EPSOM'S GINO REA PIPS TEAM-MATE FOR A PLACE ON THE PODIUM

yourlocalguardian.co.uk

Gino proves he's Rea deal

Epsom's Gino Rea raced to third place in round eight of the European Superstock 600 Championship at Donington Park on Sunday.

Teenager Rea gained bragging rights in his Stonebaker Racing team by finishing just seven 100ths of a second ahead of team-mate Dan Linfoot.

Rea said: "That was a pretty exciting race, the most fun I've had all year.

"At the start, when the track was wet, I felt I had the pace to stay with the leaders, but as it dried out the surface got greasy.

"There was a lot of fairing-rubbing going on at the end and it was hard to battle with Dan and keep the bike on two wheels.

"I would like to get a win before the end of the season. Ideally, I would have done it here today but I am happy with my podium."

Hot Ashford

Perhaps it is just as well that Leatherhead have the weekend off after Tuesday night's 5-0 mauling at Ashford Town.

Boss Ian Hazel will be glad to see the back of the Kent side, the cause of the Tanners' enforced rest period after winning an FA Cup clash between the sides 3-2 a fortnight ago.

Leatherhead, who had risen to seventh in Ryman Division One South on the back of a fine second-half performance in Saturday's 3-1 win over Whyteleafe, now slide back into mid-table.

Things are unlikely to get easier for the Tanners when they host Met Police in their next match at Fetcham Grove on Saturday, September 20, with the Blues featuring a number of former Leatherhead players in their line-up.

GB call-up: Kickboxing instructor Angela Hebden

Hebden's GB mission

Epsom kickboxing instructor Angela Hebden has admitted to pre-European Championship nerves after being named as part of the 10-person Great Britain team bound for Portugal in November.

The 24-year-old Great Britain Martial Arts Academy instructor, who teaches in Leatherhead and Richmond as well as her home town, got the nod last week in the 70kg contact and continuous category after a six-month qualification process. The six-time BISMAP grand champion has won gold and silver at both the WPKA European and WPKA World Championships since returning from a two-year injury break last year, and is in fine form.

"I am really pleased to be selected because it's such a prestigious team, so it is very exciting," she said.

"The squad going out is a really strong team of experienced fighters, led by a fantastic light contact coach in Dwyer Evelyn."

Sam's heroes rain supreme

by MARK SPRING

sports@london.newsquest.co.uk

Banstead have dramatically claimed promotion back to the top flight of the Shepherd Neame Surrey Championship.

Although the side were defeated by East Molesey on Saturday, promotion from Division One was secured when the rain finally arrived at Ashtead to halt their run chase against Purley.

Play seemed unlikely when Banstead arrived at East Molesey after a night of torrential rain.

But the team demonstrated their determination to take some control of their destiny by leading the clean-up operation, even using their own towels to help mop up water from the pitch.

After losing the toss, Sam Woodward's team had no option but to score quickly, declare and try to bowl out the opposition.

A draw was of no consequence in this complicated points system.

Despite the moisture, the wicket proved surprisingly true as Banstead amassed 179-6 off 29 overs – built around an excellent opening partnership between Rory Burns (36) and Mark Houghton, who again top-scored with 71.

Woodward looked in good form with a late flurrish of 26 not out. Inevitably, conditions proved equally favourable for East Molesley, as they successfully chased down the total in 29 overs, again due in major part to an excellent opening stand of 98 between Perera (63) and Henderson (68), as for once the Banstead attack could not make its usual early inroads.

As the players sat disconsolately in the dressing room, news filtered through that the rain that had surrounded Ashtead for most of the afternoon had arrived, halting their progress towards an achievable 160 in 35 overs.

The game was forced to a close with a winning draw awarded in Ashtead's favour, but the four points were insufficient to overtake Banstead's haul, leading to wild celebrations that continued long into the evening at the Banstead clubhouse.

The season has been a personal triumph for Sam Woodward. At the age of 25, Woodward is stepping down as captain after four years, during which time he has grown from raw captain to established leader.

His total commitment has been evidenced by a run of 99 consecutive games for the club, during which he has been the premier batsman and the opposition's prized wicket.

Banstead's evening was made complete with confirmation of promotion for the third and fourth teams from their respective leagues to make it a memorable weekend for the club – in spite of the weather.

moment bridal looks for 2008.

"This season marks a welcome return to femininity – the mood is romantic and soft. Designers have played with a shorter, full-skirted shape as well as creating an elongated silhouette, using a sleek bodice and floor sweeping hemlines."

Prom style dresses and shorter lengths are also big news for 2008.

Rachele Hayman, Bhs wedding buying director, adds: "The taste for long dresses is changing; shorter styles are more prominent."

If you don't want to flaunt your legs, turn to the back – this season's hottest body part. Sexy low-cut backs are a show-stopping alternative for contemporary brides, and will give the congregation something to admire while you're reading your vows.

This year's styles are sleeker and sit close to the body, skimming your curves, so look to dresses that are bias cut, mermaid, or soft A-line skirts.

FIGURE FLATTERING

If you're not a super slim bride, the high street can also deliver. Catering for sizes 14-32, Evans recently launched a new bridal collection featuring statement dresses and flattering two-pieces for plus sizes.

But whatever your size, choosing styles to flatter your figure can give you a real confidence booster on the big day.

Full skirts will draw attention to your bottom half, while full sleeves and fancy bodices will emphasise your top half. If you're curvy, make the most of it and go for a classic hourglass shape and a simple neckline.

FINISHING TOUCHES

From a show-stopping short prom dress, to a flowing full-length gown, whatever your choice of dress, accessories are key to pulling your desired look together for top-to-toe perfection.

Once you've finally chosen your ideal dress, shopping for shoes, headwear, and accessories will give your gown an added touch of individuality.

"The choice of accessories should depend entirely on the image you would like to create," advises top designer Caroline Castigliano.

"Accessories are vital to creating the overall look and should compliment the dress perfectly.

"Many brides want to create a more traditional look in the day and can do this using a shrug to cover shoulders, but when the evening comes they are increasingly looking for a much more glamorous look – more of a red carpet statement," she says.

"By adding a sash softly tied at the waist, and a careful choice of jewellery and accessories she can completely change her look."

If you want to go traditional, veils are still a popular choice for big weddings but tiaras and fascinators are now equally as coveted by brides who want a modern twist.

Before you start your accessories shopping spree, don't forget the old custom of wearing 'something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue'.
